RENT CONTROL PLANS SET UP AS ORDNANCE PLANT RUSH BEGINS

Aid for Farm Owners in Area and Federal Housing Plans Among Other Developments Here.

[illegible]-wide developments in connection with [illegible]ons for start of work on the Scioto Ordnance [illegible] in full swing here yesterday. They included [illegible]:

[illegible]'s fair rent committee met at the mayor's office, took steps to establish control of the local situation to avoid federal intervention. It arranged to hold hearings on all complaints with full publicity regarding proceedings.

[illegible]encies making up the Marion county USDA (U. S. Department of Agriculture) War Board mapped a program of assistance for farmers in the ordnance plant area.

[illegible]s Chapel community said farewell to its church at a special meeting last night. However, religious services will continue at the chapel until it is taken over by the government department.

Preliminary steps to provide Marion with federal housing to accommodate its expanding population were taken when A. L. Guckert, state head of the federal housing administration, conducted a survey in Marion and conferred with officials and bankers.

Fair Rent Committee Goes Into Action

[illegible] to avert government [illegible] rental prices in Marion, [illegible] about by location of the [illegible] Ordnance Plant in the [illegible] local fair rent committee [illegible] night in the office of [illegible] Russell C. Snare and in[illegible] program of immediate [illegible] of cases involving "ex[illegible] increases."

[illegible]te and forceful action [illegible]ed off government measures [illegible]ying an arbitrator as[illegible]ed to the city to assume con[illegible] of the situation," in the opinion of the committee.

Giving impetus to the situation, the committee announced immediate investigation of a condition [illegible]ed by a Marion manufacturer [illegible]n and starting of hearings on complaints filed by renters [illegible] will be given full [illegible] the committee agreed.

Hearings Planned

The committee will hold hearings on complaints, giving both [illegible] and landlords an opportunity to state their cases. All complaints must be in handwriting, giving the name of the [illegible] of the property involved and the name and address of the owner. They must be delivered to the "Fair Rent [illegible] the Municipal Building, room [illegible].

The committee's next meeting [illegible] held as soon as one or more complaints is properly filed [illegible] was the concensus that unless [illegible]ple action is taken voluntarily [illegible] conditions here [illegible] be brought to the attention [illegible] Washington and a government [illegible] will be sent here.

Army Officer Present

[illegible] Col. John P. Huling Jr., Marion [illegible] advance representative in [illegible] with the committee [illegible] expressed one phase of its duties when he declared that "fair rent is a part of our war production program—it is the private citizen's contribution to the war effort."

He and the committee agreed that there are some instances when increased rents are justifiable and that the only duty of the committee is to make certain that the increases are fair.

Discussing what the term "fair" involves, one committee member said he had received a complaint from an apartment renter that his rent had been increased from $33 to $37 a month. The owner furnishes heat and water.

"I told him that he'd better get that owner signed to a year's lease," the committee member said, explaining that he told the complainant that by next winter the $4 monthly increase probably wouldn't cover the cost of the increase in local prices.

All of the committee members reported having received one or more complaints, some of which they viewed as unreasonable, others as justifiable.

One for Investigation

The committee concurred in a move to investigate a case called to its attention by the head of a Marion industrial concern. It involved a man who reported to his employer that he was going to have to quit because the home in which he was living and been sold and the cheapest rent he could find was $65 a month for a house with no modern improvements.

"That case is one which we should look into," one committeeman said. "It may be that the worker has other reasons for wanting to quit and is using high rents as an excuse."

That conditions in Marion are acute and will become more so in the next 60 days, was agreed by the committee and Colonel Huling.

"If we can move now and keep

Likens Community Says Farewell to Its Chapel

By BOB BYRD

[illegible] Likens community formally [illegible]ewell to the Likens [illegible] last night in the [illegible]es of social meetings [illegible] centered around the [illegible] nearly three-quarters [illegible]y.

Youngest Gets Locket

[illegible] locket was presented [illegible] Rebecca Kay McCurdy, [illegible]-old daughter of Mr. [illegible] Howard McCurdy, the [illegible] member in the cradle roll. She is a granddaughter of O. C. McCurdy, former Marion county commissioner, and Mrs. McCurdy, both of whom were present. Rebecca nodded sleepily to the crowd as her mother carried her to the front of the church to accept the gift. "I'm sure Rebecca" would say 'thank you' to all of you if she were able," her mother said.

Other awards went to George Bird, Mrs. Callie Bird, Mrs. Wilda Fulton, Mrs. Marjorie Gulliford, Mrs. Ruthella Windom, all teachers, Mrs. Retha Showers, president of the Ladies Aid society, Mrs. Helen Gulliford, vice president of the aid society, Albert Seckel, superintendent of the Sunday school, and William Gulliford, assistant superintendent.

The evening started off with a potluck supper at 8 o'clock. Then came some singing and a formal program, followed by the presentation of the awards. The party continued until midnight.

The church is a fine brick structure, well-equipped and tastefully decorated. It was built in 1916 and dedicated early in 1917 following a fire that destroyed the original frame church built there in 1871. Prior to 1871 the Likens community residents held religious services in schools of the community, and since the erection of the church it has been the home of a prosperous and devout congregation which now numbers well over 100 members. Also, the church has been a social center for the community, with

TELLS OF PROFITS

Chief counsel for the house naval affairs committee, which is investigating war production as part of current hearings on the Smith bill, Edmund H Toland, above, reports that a survey of 15 companies handling naval contracts had shown salaries and bonuses of their officials in 1941 ranged from 22 to 1,731 per cent above that of 1934. The Smith bill would outlaw the closed shop for the duration, limit war profits to 6 per cent and suspend the 40-hour work week. The treasury opposes the 6 per cent proposal and both President Roosevelt and War Production Chief Donald Nelson oppose suspension of the 40-hour work week.

DOCTORS DISAGREE ON RAVER'S SANITY

Judge Appoints Three More To Examine Accused Slayer.

Special to The Star

KENTON, March 28—Mental specialists for both the state and the defense in the Edward Raver murder trial testified this morning, the state specialist, asserting his examination of Raver had convinced him of the defendant's sanity and the defense specialist maintaining his examination had revealed Raver insane.

Dr. Howard D. McIntyre of Cincinnati, defense witness, said in his opinion Raver is now a mental case in the early stages of insanity. He said that at the time of his examination of the defendant, March 15, he was insane and that he is led to believe that Raver was a mental case at the time of the shooting of his wife Jan. 26.

Dr. George T Harding of Columbus, witness for the state, said he examined the defendant on March 10 and found him perfectly sane at that time. As a result, he said, he is convinced of Raver's sanity at the time of the shooting.

Court was recessed briefly in the middle of the morning. Upon reassembling, the attorneys reported they had no further evidence to offer and Judge Arthur D Tudor appointed the following three mental specialists to examine the defendant Sunday afternoon and submit a report to the court Monday: Dr. C. Bushong and Dr G H Crawfis of Lima and Dr F. C. Wagenhals of Columbus.

Testifies 5 Hours

Yesterday Raver, was on the witness stand for nearly five hours. He told a dramatic story of becoming overwrought by attempt of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Golda Wetherill, to commit suicide; her repeated accusations that he was having relations with a girl at the factory where both were employed; and frequent quarrels with his wife and mother-in-law over announced intention of his wife, to seek a divorce.

Also preying on his mind, and leaving him sleepless and "sick at my stomach" was an operation for infection that left his wife sterile.

Tells of Shooting

On the morning of the shooting Jan 26, Raver said that he arose, fixed the fire and then prepared the wash water for his wife who was to do the family laundering. She went in the adjoining bedroom to talk to her mother, who had lived with the couple much of the time since they were married on Oct. 18, 1941, then came out and accused him of "running around," Raver asserted.

"I became nervous and weak, and grabbed the gun....I didn't realize what I had done until I saw her fall to the floor. I tried to shoot myself but Golda (the mother-in-law) knocked against my arm as she came through the door, and the second shot was discharged.

"I stooped down and lifted Reva's head and shoulders in my arms. She died in my arms."

Then the youth, who has sat quietly throughout the trial, wiped the tears from his eyes. Two women members of the jury wiped the tears away and several in the audience were crying openly.

Russian Steppes To See Bloody War This Spring

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

The rapidly swelling intensity of preparations for the spring battle of the Russian steppes leaves small doubt that this will be the greatest and bloodiest engagement of the war to date—the most terrible of all time.

Daily it becomes more apparent, too, that this is likely to be the decisive conflict of the war. The allies and the forces of evil are embattled at Armageddon.

At the outset the allied problem of manpower must be solved mainly by the Soviet. Russia has the men, but she is short of warplanes and tanks and other vital sinews, and is counting upon America and Britain for materiel.

President Roosevelt has ordered a first priority on shipment of war supplies to the Soviet. Uncle Sam intends to do better than his best.

That will be glad news in Moscow, which has been urging an all-out effort by the allies in this emergency. Both Ivan Maisky, Soviet ambassador to London, and Ambassador Litvinoff have been hammering persistently on this item. Now help is being rushed to the Red front.

Hitler is alive to this, for his air-force, stirring from its long weeks of overhauling and repair, is beginning to strike again, and the most feasible Russian gateway for supplies—Murmansk, up in the Arctic—has been heavily bombed. This accounts for the Russian coup of landing troops behind the German lines on that front yesterday. There is intensification, too, of the axis attack on allied shipping routes.

"Burglar" Takes Nothing, Leaves Watch Behind

A new type of "burglar" who, after entering a garage, did not bother a new car or tires but, instead, left a shiny new wrist watch behind him was reported at police headquarters yesterday.

D. R. Carpenter of 711 Davids Street told police that his garage was entered some time Thursday night or early Friday morning. He said he discovered the entrance when he went to the garage Friday morning and found the door to the garage open. He reported that, although he thought he had locked the door the previous night, he could discover no forced entrance.

Although, according to him, neither the doors to the new auto nor the ignition was locked, the car apparently had not been tampered with and there was no evidence that any one had attempted to remove the tires.

Mr. Carpenter discovered the watch, which was still running, while working in the garage later in the day.

He still has the watch, and as yet has no claimers.

BRITISH FLEET REPORTED ON WAY TO INDIA

Great Naval Battle with Japanese Looms as Sea Forces Gather.

By The Associated Press

Signs of a great impending battle for India increased today as the Rome radio reported that a major British naval force had been sighted enroute to the Indian ocean within 24 hours after Japanese fleet units were reported operating in those waters.

The broadcast said a British force which passed the Cape of Good Hope, southernmost Africa, included two large battleships, two aircraft carriers, several cruisers and smaller ships.

Japanese warships were reported near the enemy-captured Andaman islands in the Bay of Bengal, within striking distance of Calcutta or Ceylon, and at Rangoon, Burma.

Allied prospects were brightened momentarily in the battle of Burma by courageous Chinese counter-attacks which wiped out an invading Japanese force on the air field of Toungoo, eastern base of a defense line before the threshold of India.

Situation Improves

"The situation on the Toungoo front appears to have improved," said a British communique issued at New Delhi.

Chinese authorities said the tough, war-wise veterans sent south by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, their morale boosted by reinforcements, had "liquidated the Japanese detachment at the air field and continued to counter-attack Japanese reinforcements" moving upon the city.

British withdrawals were implied, however, in the rich Irrawaddy river valley to the west. The New Delhi communique said "our lines had to be straightened on the Irrawaddy front in consequence of recent developments in the Toungoo area."

A bulletin said Japanese air raiders struck heavily yesterday at a town on the Irrawaddy river, running down incendiary bombs that destroyed three-quarters of the settlement—which was not identified.

"Military damage was very slight and casualties were very few, too," the announcement added.

Heavy fighting apparently still was raging around Toungoo, with virtually encircled Chinese troops giving the Japanese invaders a terrific battle in the city's outskirts.

The Chinese were said to have received reinforcements from their own armies which boosted their morale considerably.

A communique from Chungking said yesterday that the city still was in Chinese and allied hands up to Thursday night.

Jap Garrison Wiped Out

Before the reinforcements cut their way through to the city, the beleaguered Chinese were said to have "liquidated the Japanese detachment at the airfield and continued to counter-attack Japanese reinforcements arriving there."

General Sir Thomas Blamey, new commander in chief of the allied land forces in Australia, said it was highly probable the Japanese would launch a big offensive against India as soon as they could consolidate the positions they already have won.

Fresh aerial action was reported in the South Pacific.

Allied bombers fired a Japanese vessel in a raid yesterday on shipping at Koepang, capital of Dutch Timor, the second attack there in two days, a Melbourne announcement said.

Japanese fliers struck feebly at the airports of Port Moresby, capital of New Guinea, and Kokoda village in the Owen Stanley range. Allied fighters destroyed two raiders and one of the defenders was shot down in a dogfight over Port Moresby.

Lt. Baldwin Goes to Fort Benning

Lt. Thomas A. Baldwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Baldwin of 195 East Washington avenue, left at noon today for Fort Benning, Ga., for advanced training in the heavy weapons school.

Orders to report came this week from the war department. Last month Baldwin received his commission as a second lieutenant in infantry, becoming the first Marion county man in recent years to receive an army commission as a result of completing training in the Citizens Military Training Corps. He had been employed as a messenger in the Marion office of the Kent division of the Erie railroad. He had been second in command to Walter Mathiot, commander of Marion Rifles, student military training corps.

Miss Richey, daughter of a school superintendent, thus became the first Pittsburgh district girl to arrive on the European war front. She was the nation's first girl transport pilot and one of the first women flying instructors.

Nazi Reports Say Assault Repulsed with Heavy Loss of Ships and Men.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 28—British Commandos invaded St. Nazaire, the great Nazi submarine base on the French Brittany coast, earlier today in what appeared to have been an attempt to duplicate the World war coup of Zeebrugge and destroy the harbor locks by blowing up an old warship crammed with explosives.

The German high command, which released a detailed and obviously one-sided account of the action, claimed "an old American destroyer" loaded with explosives which was to have rammed the gates of the lock blew up under fire before it reached its goal, and that in addition, 9 British motor torpedo boats and four other torpedo boats of the raiders were destroyed.

The German account also said that the raiders suffered severe casualties and left over 100 prisoners in Nazi hands.

By contrast the first British communique said only that "a combined operation was carried out in the early hours of this morning by units of the three services in a small raid on St. Nazaire. A further communique will be issued as soon as our forces return."

From the German preoccupation with the raid—there were regular and special Nazi communiques — it seemed certain, however, that it was the most audacious British raid since France fell.

The regular German high command communique said the landing forces were routed when they tried to attack a shipyard and to penetrate into the town of St. Nazaire itself, that no damage whatsoever occurred in the submarine base and that no German warships were lost.

A special Nazi communique had claimed that all these troops who landed had been "encircled and destroyed."

Later Battle Reported

After dawn this morning, the Germans said, their torpedo boats encountered "a superior British destroyer formation which broke off the engagement after having received several hits."

The German accounts of the night of battle in the Loire estuary drew a close parallel with the Zeebrugge invasion of April 23, 1918 by British Naval units under Admiral Sir Roger Keyes—who for 15 months in this new war headed the Commando invasion unit.

Like St. Nazaire, Zeebrugge, on the Belgian coast, was used as a submarine base by the Germans and too, it was bombed repeatedly.

Under Keyes, a submarine full of explosives was blown up beneath a viaduct connecting the harbor mole to land, while three old cruisers filled with cement steamed into the harbor and headed for the Zeebrugge canal. Two of them were sunk after the channel. Meanwhile the old cruiser Vindictive was held outside the mole by two ferry boats.

Nazis Claim Heavy Losses by British

By The Associated Press

A spectacular British sea-borne attempt to wreck the port of St. Nazaire on the French coast, key base for Germany's U-boat offensive in the battle of the Atlantic, was declared by the German high command today to have been crushed with "high bloody losses" and the capture of 100 prisoners.

In a special bulletin, the Nazi high command acknowledged that the British succeeded in landing troops in the attack last night but asserted they were routed in an attempt to storm the big St. Nazaire shipyard and to penetrate the town itself.

The communique said a former American destroyer, laden with explosives, blew up under the fire of German shore batteries as the British sought to ram it against the gates of the harbor locks in an attempt to destroy them.

"The mass of enemy motor torpedoboats and assault boats was also destroyed or heavily damaged by artillery," the communique declared.

No Damage, Nazis Say

"On the German side, not one watercraft was lost," the Nazi bulletin asserted. "Also, in the submarine base no damage whatever occurred.

"After dawn, German torpedoboats encountered a superior British destroyer formation which broke off the engagement after having received several hits."

The German high command said a destroyer, four large torpedoboats and nine smaller ones were destroyed by Nazi defense forces in beating off the assault.

A British communique said units of the army, navy and air force made a "small raid" on St. Nazaire to enable landing parties to attack the German defenders.

Keyes lost a destroyer and four smaller craft and had 108 dead, 181 wounded and 16 missing.

St. Nazaire is well placed that the submarines which have been taking an increasing toll of Atlantic shipping can make a straight run into the Atlantic.

It is approximately 150 miles from the nearest British base.

Hardened Aussie Fighters Home from Malay, Libya

By C. YATES McDANIEL
AP Correspondent

MELBOURNE, March 28 — The first battle-toughened units of the Imperial force Australia sent to war fronts from sun-scorched Libya to the jungles of Malaya have returned to the homeland they left nearly two years ago and are being reformed today into the ranks of the allied defenders of their own directly menaced shores.

With these grim-faced veterans of Tobruk and Singapore—infantry, artillery and airmen—are other empire soldiers and fliers (the number and identity unconcealed) grouped for the stand in the new front lines alongside United States troops already at their bases.

The fight, said General Sir Thomas Blamey, new allied land force commander in Australia, must be based on the flat assumption that the Japanese will attempt to invade the continent.

Jap Advance

Hard-hitting United States and Australian bombers still are holding the Japanese advance striking force at bay in the fringe of coral-reefed and jungle-matted islands north of Australia, while fighters and a stiff anti-aircraft defense countered aerial thrusts which have preceded each Japanese landing move in the southwest Pacific.

A communique said the harbor of Koepang, Japanese-seized port of Dutch Timor and a springboard for Japanese attack from the northwest, had been bombed for a second consecutive day, setting one ship afire.

(The Australian radio said the Japanese raided Port Moresby on the south coast of New Guinea again today, but reported that in repeated bombings in which 100 planes have been used and 1,500 to 2,000 bombs dropped, only two persons have been killed at the port and damage has been very slight).

Returning members of the Australian imperial force, arriving in contingents comprising many types of personnel, greeted the wives and children and parents they left behind in the early days of the war.

Want Crack at Japs

They talked sternly of their new job—a crack at the foe who has smashed through the island bastions behind which Australia seemed guarded and secure only a few months ago.

"The Japanese won't be any tougher than the Hun," declared some of the fighting men who served in Greece and North Africa.

"We'll break our necks to get back into the fray and carry on the traditions of those who have gone," said others.

Fliers who have met the Japanese before—in Malaya and Java—told their fellows that "the Japanese will be easy money when they are met on equal terms in the air and on land."

CHURCHES ARRANGE PALM SUNDAY AND HOLY WEEK RITES

Special Sermons, Baptismal Services and Reception of New Members Among Events Scheduled.

And when they came nigh to Jerusalem, unto Bethephage and Bethany, at the mount of Olives, he sendeth forth two of his disciples.

And saith unto them, Go your way into the village over against you: and as soon as ye be entered into it, ye shall find a colt tied, whereon never man sat; loose him, and bring him.

And if any man say unto you, Why do ye this? say ye that the Lord hath need of him, and straightway he will send him hither.

And they went their way, and found the colt tied by the door without in a place where two ways met; and they loose him.

And certain of them that stood there said unto them, What do ye, loosing the colt?

And they said unto them even as Jesus had commanded: and they let them go.

And they brought the colt to Jesus, and cast their garments on him; and he sat upon him.

And many spread their garments in the way: and others cut down branches off the trees, and strawed them in the way.

And they that went before, and they that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna; Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord:

Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, that cometh in the name of the Lord: Hosanna in the highest.

And Jesus entered into Jerusalem, and into the temple: and when he had looked round about upon all things, and now the eventide was come, he went out unto Bethany with the twelve.

Palm Sunday

A SERMONETTE

By REV. HOWARD L. OLEWILER

Pastor, First Presbyterian Church.

* * *

JERUSALEM streets were crowded with a seething jubilant mass of the faithful from every corner of the world. It was home-coming. During the year extensive preparation was entered into for this pilgrimage to the Passover Feast. Some made it not only a holy day but a holiday. Buying and selling, soap box orators, shouting, dancing, clapping of hands, the sound of timbrels, among many things it was gay and bizarre; streets jammed with sheep, tents, food, a confusion of colors and a strange assortment of costumes. The more serious minded were there also. No doubt, shook their heads and said, "What is the younger generation coming to?" But they were all glad. They were home. Jerusalem the homeland, the holy place of God and their fathers, awakened within each heart a great upsurge of religious enthusiasm.

A feeling of unrest and expectancy was in the air. They were talking once more of liberation, not in formal convention halls for fear of the authorities, but in groups, in small gatherings. Is this the day of our freedom? The whole atmosphere was charged with a sincere yearning for liberty and freedom from the heel of Rome. Both Jerusalem and the Temple were chained to Roman domination and the cruel practices of the tax collector and Jewish magistrate. Jerusalem the center of their religious life, was controlled by imperial Rome. This was unbearable.

SUDDENLY word reached the city that the great Rabbi was on his way to observe the feast. The Mighty One, who had fed the five thousand and raised Lazarus from the dead. Soon the whole city whispered, "now the time has come, our day is at hand." Many could not wait and hurried out of the city to see this miracle Man. Lo and behold He was riding upon an ass—face set toward Jerusalem. Excitement on every side, singing, "Hosanna in the highest, blessed be He who cometh in the name of the Lord God," waving palm branches, dancing and shouting, nothing but emotion bordering on hysteria. Fear and hope mingled in their hearts.

In sharp contrast the lowly, humble man was silent as the procession advanced only to say this, "If they do not sing 'Hosanna in the highest' the stones will shout."

THE MASTER had reached the Temple. The crowd breathless, strained their ears to hear a word of hope. A great disappointment fell upon them like a black foreboding. He said nothing. Their cheering faded away. That was their first shock and it cut deep. Their dream tumbled down into thin air. This Rabbi did not put Himself forward as their earthly leader for whom they were waiting. Their hope of freedom from the Roman yoke which they had cherished so long was not realized. The throne of David was still empty. This is why they made an easy transition from a golden voice in song to a harsh, throaty cry, Crucify him! It was a voice out of the heart of bitter and angry disappointment. After all he was not their King. He dashed their expectations to the ground. He said not a word against the Roman oppressor nor did He mention the glory or the restoration of the throne of David.

He was a King. A different kind of a King. No wonder they could not understand. They were face to face with a strange King. Instead of calling His subjects and demanding submission and obeisance, this King died. Think of it. This King died for His subjects. Earthly Kings demand respect and allegiance, but this King Jesus goes out and dies that His life may be a ransom for many. He buys His subjects with His blood. Subjects generally shed their blood for their King. Not this King. He was different. He deliberately and joyfully walked to the human torture of the Cross and poured out His blood for the safety and deliverance of His people. Something new and unheard of. This King could have called a legion of Angels to defend Him and smite the accusers. Earthly Kings call their armies to defend the throne. Instead this King prayed, "Forgive them." A new kind of King.

Palm Sunday will mark the resuming in Marion of church services for the deaf.

Rev. H. A. L. Grindon, rector of St. Philip's Episcopal church in Cleveland, will conduct a service Sunday night at 7:30 in St. Paul's Episcopal church.

There are at least 30 deaf persons in Marion and the vicinity of Upper Sandusky, Mt. Gilead, Cardington, Bucyrus and Agosta who are known to Rev. S. S. Hardy and who have been notified of the service. A cordial invitation has been extended to all deaf persons to attend.

Rev. Grindon became interested in the deaf and took up study of the sign language. He became proficient and in addition to his regular parish work he has become missionary to the deaf for the Diocese of Ohio.

He now conducts regular services for the deaf in Cleveland, Toledo and Akron, and in addition will conduct occasional services in Marion, Tiffin and Lima.

For many years St. Paul's church offered services for the deaf but several years ago the services were discontinued.

Many Exclusive Interviews

There were exclusive interviews with Queen Mary of Rumania, King Alexander of Yugoslavia, King Zog of Albania, King Boris of Bulgaria and many premiers and foreign ministers. He had a dramatic two-hour talk with Queen Marie in August, 1927, as her husband, King Ferdinand, lay dead in an adjoining room.

Greece flamed into Civil war, in the spring of 1935 with Venezelists battling "Royalists. The fighting was right in Mills' "home territory" and he hurried across the Grecian frontier. For three days there was no word of him. Then on March 10 a mud-caked figure appeared on the Yugoslav border with the first eye-witness account of the defeat of the insurgents. It was the end of an 80-mile trip in which Mills had lost his automobile over a cliff, ridden a horse until the steed gave out, and then trudged weary miles.

Mills reported the coronation of Hailie Selassie and in 1934 covered the enthronement of Henry Pu-Yi as emperor Kang Teh, monarch of Manchukuo.

He spent many months in India with Mahatma Gandhi. He was the last person to whom Gandhi spoke before entering the Poona jail in January, 1932, and the first to greet him on his release 17 months later.

"Why Mr. Mills," exclaimed the Mahatma on this latter occasion. "If I should die and start to enter heaven I should expect to see you waiting to interview me at the gates"

Commandos Attack French Port

Nazaire early today and announced that a further report would be issued "as soon as our forces return."

DNB, the German news agency, said British "aviation units"—presumably parachute troops—also participated in the attack.

St. Nazaire is a German U-boat base.

Adolf Hitler's high command declared in a special communique that Nazi coastal batteries and anti-aircraft fire frustrated the invasion attempt, inflicting heavy losses on the British.

Many Boats Lost

The communique said "many" British boats were sunk while others "fled precipitously."

The size of the invading force was not disclosed, but the Germans said that "a fairly high number of prisoners remains in our hands."

British marines who succeeded in landing on the coast were "encircled and destroyed, thanks to the rapid action of troops of all kind," the Nazi communique asserted.

The German radio declared that "after this costly experiment the drawing room strategists of London will convince themselves of the hopelessness of such enterprises.

"Should this, however, still not be sufficient evidence for them, we cordially invite them over for further such experiments. Our commanders stand ready to expect them and to repeat the lesson given to the British last night."

The German high command acknowledged that the raiders were able to land but declared that they achieved nothing.

Just a month ago, British parachutists and sea-borne troops combined in a swift raid on a radio detector post at Bruneval in German-occupied France.

Radio Station Destroyed

In this previous assault, the British swooped down under cover of darkness, surprised the German garrison, demolished the radio station used to spot the British planes on their way across the channel and returned successfully with a number of German prisoners.

St. Nazaire, on the far southern coast of Brittany, site of a naval arsenal where Germans have been reported manufacturing small caliber munitions, has been bombed frequently by the royal air force. St. Nazaire is also the site of one of the largest French shipyards.

St. Nazaire is on the Bay of Biscay, at the mouth of the Loire river.

The raid marked the farthest British thrust into southern France and followed a series of other hit-and-run attacks by British commandos on the French channel coast and other points in the north.

Russian arctic fighters defending the port and railhead of Murmansk were reported squeezing fore and aft today upon the invading forces of Lieut. Gen. Eduard Dietl, who won oak leaf decorations for his knight's cross in the 1940 battle of Narvik.

The Soviet army newspaper Red Star said a newly announced Red army landing from the sea on axis-occupied soil of the Murmansk coast had developed steady pressure at the rear and "now Dietl has been forced on the defensive."

Acclaimed by Hitler

Austrian mountaineers were said to make up the command of General Dietl, slender 51-year-old Bavarian who was acclaimed by Adolf Hitler as a hero of the Norwegian campaign.

At least 10 German transports were said to have been destroyed by Soviet submarines in connection with the flanking Russian troop movement, and Red Star said Russian airmen had sunk a German destroyer and damaged another.

The Soviet information bureau reported that 2,450 Germans had been killed, many wounded and 25 tanks destroyed in five days of fighting on the Kalinin front brought on by Nazi counterattacks seeking to oust "our troops wedged into enemy defenses."

Fresh Balkan trouble for the axis was forecast in New York.

Col. Dragutin Savich, a special delegate of Gen. Draja Mihailovic, said 100,000 Yugoslav guerrillas were preparing to launch a spring offensive. He urged in an interview that the patriots be sent supplies by submarines or planes.

SABOTAGE OF MORALE BRINGS TWO ARRESTS

Men Charged with Advocating Disloyalty in Army.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 28 — The government ordered two arrests to make it bluntly plain today that it would tolerate no suspected sabotage of the morale or loyalty of men in the armed forces.

Prosecution proceedings were instituted in Chattanooga, Tenn., against George W. Christians, organizer of the "Crusader White Shirts," on charges of distributing propaganda which advocated insubordination, disloyalty and mutiny in the army to bring about a "reign of terror."

Almost simultaneous action was taken against Rudolph Fahl, of Denver, charged with attempting to undermine the morale of the military forces.

Attorney General Biddle announced that he had directed the two arrests and cited quotations from some of the alleged propaganda. If the men, both native Americans, should be convicted, they face a maximum penalty of ten years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

Christians, Biddle said, addressed some of his printed propaganda to officers at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and Camp Forrest, Tenn., whereas Fahl appealed orally to officers of the air corps gunnery school at Lowry Field, Colo.

In one of the Christians' documents cited by the department of justice, a list of questions on the war were propounded, with the notation that they were "designed to finish the demoralization of the existing order and create a reign of terror * * *."

"When the mad mob gets in motion make sure that they dig all of the blood-sucking gangsters out from under their pile of rock and steel. Line them up against a wall and shoot them. See that they run down all the political parasites. Don't miss a single politician, big or little. Just hang them to the nearest tree or lamppost. Drive the moral lepers out of our prostitute press into a pest house and burn them."

ARMY AND NAVY JOIN IN ATLANTIC PATROL

Submarine Defense Put Under Unified Command.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 28 — Army bombers and navy patrol boats quartered American waters from Iceland to Panama today in the navy's new counteroffensive against the submarines that have sunk some 70 ships off Atlantic and Caribbean shores.

Clearing spring weather was expected to aid the hunt in coming weeks. The submarines have less chance of remaining undetected than during winter storms because the frothy wake of a periscope is indistinguishable from white caps of breaking waves. Also, the lengthening of days will give the undersea craft fewer dark hours in which to surface and recharge their batteries.

Under the counteroffensive announced yesterday all anti-submarine forces are grouped in sea frontier commands, with army planes under direct control of the navy. Establishment of the system followed a complaint by Governor J. M. Broughton of North Carolina that there had been a "shocking lack of cooperation" between the army and the navy on the U-boat hunt.

Rear Admiral Adolphus Andrews has the vital Atlantic seafrontier command, from Canada to the Caribbean.

SHOW BOAT GIRL

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

Ditching Jimmy

RANDY found Melissa on deck one afternoon, lounging in a canvas deck-chair, an unread magazine on her lap. He paused, looked down at her for a moment, and then, as though he had come to some decision, asked baldly, "See here, Melissa, have you and Jimmy Marston been quarrelling? I don't seem to see him around any more."

Melissa caught her breath and was silent for a moment. Was Jimmy complaining of her behavior to his father? Was Mr. Marston silly enough and old-fashioned enough to want to punish, even indirectly, anybody who fell afoul of Jimmy's bad temper?

"Why, no, of course we haven't been quarreling. What an idea!" she stammered hastily, and added hurriedly, "I—I imagine he's—well, busy in town. Maybe that's why he hasn't been out."

"Maybe," agreed Randy, and studied her again for a moment before he turned and looked out over the shore-line. "Melissa, are you in love with Jimmy?" he demanded.

Melissa was heartily glad that his eyes were turned away from her face until she had time to compose her features after the unexpectedness of that.

"Of course not," she answered as lightly as she could. "I like him, of course—he's fun and all that—but I'm not in love with him."

Randy turned then and looked down at her, his hands sunk deeply into his pockets, his mouth a little grim.

"I'm afraid you're not a very good liar, Melissa," he accused. "Everything about you gives you away, and I'm sorry because—well, I'm afraid Jimmy Marston is going to hurt you pretty badly. He's rather a careless youngster, and the women haven't been hard for him to get, and so—well, he can be pretty brutal—"

Melissa laughed, letting him see deeply into her eyes, meeting his startled gaze bravely, directly, serenely.

"Let him be just as brutal as he likes—it wouldn't worry me in the least, because I'm not one single tiny scrap in love with him," she said lightly and impulsively, before she could control herself. "And anyway, if I were in love with him—he's asked me to marry him and refused to take 'no' for an answer."

"Oh, well," he said after a tense moment, "in that case, just pretend I didn't say anything, that I kept my mouth shut. I would have, except that I promised your Gran not to let you be hurt if I could help it. But it looks as though you were doing all right for yourself with no help from me. So just forget it, will you?"

And without waiting for her to answer him, he went swiftly along the deck, and a few minutes later she saw him in his car driving toward New Orleans.

Christmas Present

For a few weeks things moved swiftly and pleasantly. Business improved steadily. Every night the River Queen blazed with light and the parking space provided was packed with sleek, handsome cars.

Dolores kept her temper with a great deal of effort during those nights, but with Jimmy Marston still calling frequently, still taking Melissa in to town for dinner, for the movies, for an occasional road-show matinee, she forced herself to watch her tongue.

Christmas dawned, a beautiful mild day that was like a Northern autumn. There was a tree in a corner of the salon—a tree that was, to Melissa, the loveliest thing she had ever seen, frosted with artificial snow, gay with bright-colored balls and bubbles and tinsel. Beautifully wrapped packages tied with scarlet and gold and silver ribbons added their beauty to the tree. But they were just make-believe packages, for on Christmas morning the breakfast table was laden with the real gifts, with Randy acting as Santa Claus, though without benefit of a red flannel suit or white whiskers.

When the presents had all been distributed and opened and exclaimed over, Randy stood at his place at the table and tapped smartly on his water glass with a knife to attract the attention of the roomful of people.

"And now, boys and girls, I've got another little present for you," he said when he had their attention. "I flatter myself you'll be almost as pleased as I am to know that the River Queen no longer belongs to a group of financial backers but is the sole property of Yours Truly! I bought out Mr. Marston yesterday."

There was a patter of very genuine applause; and when it had died down, Randy went on, "And from now on a certain percentage of the daily 'take' aboard the River Queen will be divided equally among you all, to create a semiannual bonus. In short, we're all owners of the River Queen and we're a closed corporation. Nobody from the outside can horn in and ask any questions—or if they do, we can darned well tell them to go sonk their heads!"

Melissa's eyes were shining, her cheeks flushed. Randy looked at her curiously, and, after breakfast, he followed her out on deck.

"Why did you take it so big—the news that I'd bought out Marston?" he demanded without preamble.

"Because," said Melissa quite honestly, "I can stop being bothered by Jimmy. Oh, he's nice and all that, but he's so sure that I'm going to change my mind some day and marry him—and I get so darned tired of having him always underfoot—"

She caught herself, but it was too late. In her relief she had said far more than she had intended, and now she looked up at Randy almost uneasily. He was studying her sharply, curiously, frowning a little.

"If you feel like that about Jimmy, why have you bothered with him at all?" he asked her mildly.

"Well, I knew his father had an interest in the boat and that he might—well, be annoyed if Jimmy wasn't well treated—" stammered Melissa uncomfortably.

"That's an idea you did not achieve unaided!" said Randy grimly. "Who put it into your head?"

"Nobody," answered Melissa swiftly, but not quite able to meet his eyes. "I mean—well, I just thought things over—"

"Well, think this over, my pet," said Randy, and despite the paraise there was nothing caressing or tender in his voice. "Any time a girl has to put herself out to be pleasant to a flock she doesn't like just to help along the success of any business venture of mine, I'll change the venture!"

Engagement Ring

And then, so unexpectedly that he caught her completely off guard, he demanded sharply, "It couldn't by any chance have been Dolores who put the idea in your pretty little head?"

Instantly he knew that she had, although Melissa denied it swiftly and as convincingly as she could. But Randy only nodded and went up the stairs to the gambling rooms, and the door closed hard behind him.

Melissa stood alone for a moment. Then she went down to her stateroom, laden with the lovely things that Christmas had brought her; an exquisite little taffeta housecoat that Alice and Hugh had given her, with the gay remark from Alice, "We'll give you the coat, but some lucky bozo will have to give you the house, darling."

There was a bottle of perfume from Dolores; handkerchiefs, costume jewelry, chiffon stockings, books from the men in the orchestra, and even, to her surprised and child-like delight, from the wise-eyed, cynical old-young men who were the gambling room attendants.

And from Randy a wrist-watch, a simple, flat thing in a narrow band. She had never owned one before, of course, and her eager delight had been almost touching when she found it in a tissue-wrapped package on her plate.

About noon Jimmy arrived, coming aboard with his usual slight swaggering, gaily self-assured air of a conquering hero. Under one arm he carried a box which could obviously hold nothing more than flowers, and these he laid in Melissa's lap where she sat in her favorite steamer chair. He perched on the stool next to her and dug a small package from his pocket.

"Give me the left paw, angel-face," he said cheerfully. And on her third finger he slipped a ring against whose beautiful square-cut stone the sunlight twinkled and found glorious gleams of fire.

Melissa stared at the ring, wide-eyed, breathless, for a moment speechless.

"Now, according to all the movies I've seen," said Jimmy, grinning a little, "you're supposed to gasp, to say, 'Oh, Jimmy,' in a tone of awe, and then kiss the ring."

But Melissa was tugging off the ring, handing it back to him, saying swiftly, distressed, "Oh, Jimmy—no, I can't take it! I've told you over and over again, Jimmy—I don't love you—I can't marry you—"

Jimmy made a little impatient gesture, refusing the ring, saying, annoyed, "Oh, for Pete's sake, stop playing hard to get. I'm yours—hog-tied, roped and bound to your chariot-wheels—so for the love of mike, break down and stop being so blasted coy—"

"I'm not being coy, Jimmy. I'm trying my darnedest to be honest, only you won't let me," snapped Melissa, on the verge of helpless tears. "I'm not playing hard to get—I'm just telling you the truth, which is that I don't want to marry you and I don't intend to and that's that."

"Well, I'll be derned!" said Jimmy, turning the beautiful ring about in his hand as though he had never seen it before. "And all the time I thought you were just egging me on—I never for a moment thought you meant it."

Melissa said shakily, "I'm sorry, Jimmy—truly!"

HAITI—Zombies, white and otherwise, were imported into Haiti with the Negro slaves brought from West Africa with their voodoo worship soon after Haiti became independent in 1804. The slaves supplanted native Indians who occupied the island when Columbus discovered it in 1492, but who were killed off by the white settlers or worked to death in the search for gold. Recurring revolutions plagued Haiti's share of Hispaniola, the West Indies island also occupied by the Dominican Republic, until in 1915 the United States intervened. Between 1910 and 1915 there were seven presidents. The Marines had the situation in hand soon after they landed and continued to direct construction of roads, schools, sanitation systems, etc., until American occupation under a series of treaties ended in 1934. Relations between the two republics remain cordial. Haiti was the first state governed constitutionally by Negroes, who form most of the 3,000,000 population. Once a French colony, from 1677 to 1804, Haiti still uses French as the official language with a French Creole patois common among most of its people. A year ago Elie Lescot was elected president for five years by a 56 to 2 vote of Congress. The Garde d'Haiti, an armed constabulary of 2,500 officers and men, is the only military force. A tropical country, Haiti's most important crop is coffee with production of cotton, sugar, sisal, tobacco, tropical fruits and logs increasing. More literary attention has been given Haiti in recent years and the Citadel of Christophe, Negro king of Haito from 1811 to 1820, and landmarks in the battle led by Toussaint L'Ouverture, most notable Haitian leader and statesman, who freed the country for the French from Spanish and English intervention, were popular with American tourists until the war halted this profitable business.

State and City Officials Join in "Buy Coal Now" Campaign

Governor Bricker, Kenton and Columbus Mayors Among Those Urging Purchases for Future Needs.

...s of Marion and nearby ... are being urged to ... in anticipation of ... winter's needs. The ... being made by both ... coal officials.

... Bricker this week ... the 'buy coal now" ... a public appeal.

... was requested by ... the bituminous coal ... council in Washington ... launching a "Buy Coal ... plan for domestic con... ...g April 1.

... of home owners ... small consumers will ... coal next winter if ... not fill their coal bins ... council said. 'There ... not be enough loco... ...rs and coal ships ... to move coal to supply ... needs of the domestic ... after midsummer."

...rtments already have ... to submit their coal ... the governors said, ... the state plans to fill ... early. Governor ... pointed out he also had ... in February to ... and city officials and ... of education urging them ... their coal require... ...rly.

... Kenton, Mayor Leroy D ... issued a proclamation urg... during the month of ... people lay in their supply of next winter's coal.

The mayor proclaimed the month of April for purchase of coal by consumers declaring the bituminous coal situation is rapidly becoming critical and demands immediate action if thousands of homes are to be spared heatless days next winter.

Columbus' Mayor Green issued a similar appeal to residents of that city, declaring that with increased demands of industry for coal, it will be impossible to supply a sufficient quantity for domestic and industrial requirements next winter, since railroad facilities are already taxed to the limit.

Consequently, domestic consumers including laundries, apartment houses, hotels, churches, clubs and stores should place their orders at once for coal to meet the needs of the 1942-43 winter, declared the proclamation.

STEPS MADE SAFER

Basement steps are the cause of a good many accidents in the home. One precaution, say builders, is to paint the bottom step in a contrasting color. Most steps leading into the basement are painted in dark colors. Therefore, if the last or bottom step is painted white, for instance the contrasting color will show up, even at night, and help prevent stumbles and missteps.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES
O. S. U. Extension Floriculturist.

Q. Can you give me information about growing pyramid arborvitae from seed? Is it a shrub that is hard to raise? I have tried twice but haven't a plant. Last spring I sowed four and haven't a seedling. F.B.S., Chatfield.

A. The various forms of pyramidal arborvitae cannot be grown from seed since if you would get them to germinate, they would merely be the common American arborvitae. Nurserymen raise them from cuttings which are usually rooted in a glass covered, shaded cold frame during the early summer. Grown under such conditions, they require constant daily attention or they dry up and die.

I recommend that you use some more desirable form of evergreen than the arborvitae. With the exception of the giant arborvitae, they are not able to withstand the hot Ohio summers. May I recommend in their place the far more satisfactory evergreens such as the various forms of Taxus or Japanese yew, the junipers, such as the Pfitzer juniper, Andorra juniper, Canaert juniper and Keteleer juniper and the Mugho pine. Then for the sake of variety or contrast some of the lovely broadleaf evergreens, such as the mahonias, firethorn, evergreen bittersweet (Euonymus fortunei vegetus) and, in milder parts of the state where the climate permits, the boxwood and the various evergreen barberries.

Q. I have an inquiry from a property owner who wishes to set out some shade trees. On two previous occasions, he has hired some laborers to secure and plant some native trees. They have not grown, despite the fact that there should be no difficulty with the situation in which they were planted. It is evidently due to the manner in which the trees were dug, handled, and set. He would like to plant some trees which will give him some shade as quickly as possible and then also to set out some other trees that will be more permanent. He plans to cut down the temporary trees as soon as the permanent ones get large enough. What would you suggest for him to do? Do you advise the use of Chinese elms in southern Ohio? R O McF, Waverly.

A. Inasmuch as the average laborer knows nothing of tree digging and tree planting, I imagine the difficulty the man had was that the trees were not fit to grow. I suggest that, if he does not buy a tree, he get it from an opening instead of from dense woods. He should get at least a foot of root diameter for each inch of trunk diameter and possibly a little more. A tree with a 2-inch trunk should have a 24 to 30 inch root spread. I also suggest that he plant the tree at the same depth at which it had been growing.

The Chinese elm, although fast growing and beautiful, is extremely brittle and unsatisfactory. I particularly recommend for a surprisingly fast growing tree the red or scarlet oak. I might also add the pin oak, sycamore, hackberry, tulip poplar, or the thornless form of the honey locust.

Q. Since so many homes now are heated with gas, can you give us a list of plants and ferns that will grow in gas heated homes? I love to have the plants and greens around my window in winter but it has been quite discouraging since we've had a gas burner put in our furnace. Mrs. F.L.P., Columbus.

A. We usually find that the heavier leaved plants are more resistant to gas than the thinner and finer leaved ones although all plants are affected by gas fumes. Among the plants particularly recommended are the various forms of bow-string hemp or sansevieria. There are at least four or five different ones available in the florists' shops. The various types of crassula, including the common jade plant, seem to do rather well. Both the green and the variegated form of Peperomia crassifolia are good. There is no common name for these but the florists would know what you want. You will also find that most of the succulents which are sold under such names as aloe, Gasteria, Kalanchoe, and the many others available in the greenhouses will be satisfactory. Again, most of these have no common name. You will also find that English ivy, devil's ivy, and grape ivy are fairly resistant to gas injury.

Q. Is this the right time of the year to take the dead grass out of my lawn? J.H., Columbus.

A. There is absolutely no reason why or excuse for raking dead grass and other dead organic matter from the surface of the lawn. All of this should be left on to gradually disintegrate and add additional humus to the soil. This same thing applies to moss in the lawn. The moss is there only because the grass cannot grow under those conditions. Therefore, as you fertilize, or in the case of shade use a shade grass, the moss will gradually disappear, adding its bit to the organic matter of the soil.

Q. What is the most satisfactory fertilizer for lawns, for shrubbery, and for perennial borders?

A. I believe you will find a complete commercial fertilizer with an analysis of 4-12-4 is the most inexpensive, handy, and easily secured form of fertilizer. You can give the entire yard an application sometime within the next month starting at the front sidewalk and going to the back fense. Use three to four pounds to 100 square feet of yard surface.

Rehabilitation Work Helps Solve Housing Problem in Defense Areas

Neglect of Properties Causes Values To Shrink and Rentals To Decline.

The rehabilitation of existing properties, and even whole areas in various communities throughout the country, cannot possibly be overemphasized, according to building experts. Particularly is this true in defense centers, where the need and demand for additional housing facilities are creating shortages.

Because of lack of repair, each year thousands of good substantial properties are permitted to become run-down and suffer a natural decline in value. This lack of attention to repairs is not always confined to one or two houses in an area but often spreads throughout the entire neighborhood. It is as a result of this lack of care that we see so many run-down and neglected areas and communities, with loss of dollars to their owners and the communities in which they are located.

Loss Is Large

The toll taken in cash returns from rental properties which are rapidly depreciating in value because of age and lack of modern facilities could be checked, if not entirely eliminated.

Concerted action of a group of property owners can check not only the depreciation and obsolescence of a group of houses but the neighborhood itself. Many can actually be salvaged, and instead of the property in question continuing as a tax burden to the owners it can be turned into a paying investment.

The need for additional housing accommodations for workers in defense areas is acute, of that there is no doubt. It is equally true that the immediate need cannot be entirely supplied through new construction, for that takes time. However, the rehabilitation and repair of existing structures can, in most instances, at comparatively small expense, fill a considerable amount of this need and demand.

Provide Additional Homes

There are evident, in virtually every section of the country, striking examples of such rehabilitation and conversion work. Existing properties that even less than a year ago were dilapidated and rundown are today fine structures offering housing accommodations to additional families.

An attempt to link Europe and America by telegraph was begun in 1866 by way of Alaska and Siberia but was abandoned when the Atlantic submarine cable was laid.

Skagway, Alaska, chief port of entry during the Klondike gold rush, is now famed for its beautiful gardens.

Proper Mixing Needed for Paint and Enamel

To assure uniform color and proper hiding and brushing qualities it is necessary to mix paint or enamel properly. It is advised that first the liquid from the top of the can be poured into a clean vessel. Then stir well the pigment remaining in the can, gradually pouring the liquid back a little at a time—mixing it thoroughly with the pigment.

Survey Shows Houses Under $6,000 in Lead

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO — Americans have settled down to the under $6,000 house, the National Association of Real Estate Boards reported.

In a survey of 248 typical cities, the association found that in the last six months of 1941 new building of houses selling for less than $6,000 constituted 80 per cent of all home construction.

In one out of every 12 cities surveyed, the association said, under $4,000 house is the commonest style of house now being built. It added that this type of house is eight times more popular in defense than non-defense areas.

The association stated that in 62 per cent of the cities in the country and in 74 per cent of defense area cities new home building for civilians is needed to avert a housing shortage.

SEVEN BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED

Projects Estimated To Cost $6,105 Listed.

Seven building permits for projects totaling an estimated $6,105 were issued in the week ending March 20, according to a report kept in the office of Lew Shadwick, city clerk. In the preceding week four permits for projects totaling $1,150 were issued.

The largest permit went to the Isaly Dairy Co. of 203 North Prospect street for a $4,000 retail sales store at 383 West Center street. The other permits were as follows:

To A. J. Sherman, remodel dwelling at 317 Thompson street, $50; Lee Mitchell, dwelling at Niles and Fairfield streets, $200; Robert Noggle, remodel porch at 740 Davids street, $30; Mrs. W. H. Reid of 460 King street, dwelling on Spencer street, $1,750; Mrs. Ida Bottorff, remodel dwelling at 427 Park boulevard, $30; R. H. Reidenbaugh, outside stairway at 411 West Columbia street, $5.

BE PREPARED

While no coal shortage is likely, the demands of defense industries may hamper transportation facilities and for this reason it is advisable for homeowners to build up and maintain an adequate supply of coal, authorities report.

SATURDAY, MARCH 28, 1942

Still Admirable But—

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL'S newest recitation of woes, as heard by American ears, proves how great the change in this nation's war psychology has been. The heart no longer beats faster in the presence of British ability to take it. More than ever it is plain that if Great Britain continues to do nothing but take it and not give a great deal back, Mr. Churchill's country may be headed for punch-drunkenness.

The war will not be won by taking it. Germany and Japan cannot be worn down. They are not going to hang themselves in too much rope. They are going to have to be hit hard where it hurts most. The United Nations are going to have to find the means of putting them on the defensive. The death and destruction they have loosed must be turned against them. There must be more thrusts and fewer parries.

Amateurs are warned that it makes the official war planners very angry when they are confronted with opinions about the war that won't hold water. But every time Mr. Churchill reports to his countrymen, he seems to be in the awkward position of explaining how another official plan has misfired or backfired. British courage in the face of adversity is still admirable, but Americans now are drawing their inspiration from the strictly amateur hope that they may turn an increasing share of adversity against the enemy. They are tired of taking it and tired of hearing about the British taking it. They have made a hero of Gen. MacArthur because, placed in a position where there seemed nothing to do but suffer grimly, he found a way to make the enemy suffer just as grimly. That's the kind of stuff they want.

Soul-Searching

BESIDES leaving a great many desk workers with a conviction that they are little better than useless, the occupational questionnaire to be filled out by selective service registrants has another disadvantage. It calls for more soul-searching than is going to be comfortable.

The government wants to know the registrant's opinion about what type of job he is best fitted to do—which, the questionnaire points out, is not necessarily the job he is doing. Then it wants to know what his second choice of jobs would be.

If the government doesn't know this already, it is going to get some remarkable answers to a question like that. The type of job any given man is best fitted to do is to be boss of whatever organization he is working for. He is rarely, however, doing that job. His second choice would be to become the man who gives orders to his boss; it would be first, except that he has had fewer opportunities to study the notorious weaknesses of the fellow above the boss. The government will have to make allowances for a lot of imagination when it begins talking about a man and his job.

Something Else Taken for Granted

IF EVERY community in the country could experience one incident of sabotage, the lesson would be worth the loss. Instead, hundreds of them are taking security for granted, making the same mistake that was made at Pearl Harbor, which they have been urged to remember.

A broadside from United States Flag association tells an imaginative story of saboteurs occupying vital war production plants and shooting down workmen in cold blood. The same thing happens all over the country simultaneously. The next day, war production stops. Key plants have been stopped. It is one of the things that could happen here.

"Will it actually happen tonight?" asks the association. "Washington can't stop it. The answer lies with you. You are betting your life that it won't. Get to your posts, Americans . . . Now . . . and see that it doesn't."

Every story that has been told about inadequate protection of important plants, every report of plants that seem to be doing a good job, every situation that has raised the question of protection at all has bearing on the matter. If the fifth column ever strikes, it won't be a haphazard thrust in the dark, easily parried, but a bold, well planned move that will be extremely hard to stop. Americans still are taking a lot of security for granted in this war.

Pain in the What?

SINCE Dec. 7, caused by worry and anxiety, stomach ulcers have been on the increase throughout the country, according to Dr. Andrew C. Ivy of Northwestern university. Besides the war, says the doctor, who is professor of physiology and pharmacology, income taxes have done their dirty work. The combination simply has been too much for a lot of substandard digestive systems.

While it has been admitted for a long time that these things are a source of pain, the location frequently is erroneous. For instance, it sometimes is given as the neck. Bad news is a pain in the stomach, not a pain that comes and goes, but a pain that stays and stays and stays.

A survey reveals that the American boys of today are taller and heavier than 80 years ago.

News Behind the News

Camouflage Booklet of OCD Seems To Ignore Shortage of Rubber.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 28—Mr. Lundis' office for civilian defense—the one which developed terpsichorean and badminton tendencies—is circulating now an elegant booklet prepared by the war department telling how cities, railroads, airdromes may be camouflaged.

It sounds pretty good until you get down to advice about how to conceal an airfield, and then you find that the second recommended method is to:

Sprinkle the runways with chopped rubber, precolored or sprayed.

If there is a rubber shortage which is causing all the trouble about tires, this booklet pays it no attention, saying only:

"At least one of the large rubber companies is said to have facilities available for grinding and supplying approximately 15 tons of this size rubber per day without interfering with current schedules."

The war department is a big place, and a lot of other divisions there including the air corps would prefer to have their rubber spread on the wheels of airplanes than chopped up and put on runways.

Pressure is pouring in upon congressmen from the farm belt, asking some definite statement from draft headquarters about exempting farm labor. Some government bureaus privately estimate that the farmers will lose 600,000 workers this year through allurement of high-paying factory jobs alone. All government authorities predict a continuous decline in available agricultural workers from now on.

Peoria Hot Spot

The story told among railroad men in Peoria is that the brotherhoods sent an unsuspecting national official into the T. P. & W. strike situation who ran into a "hot-spot situation" in the local union, and federal seizure of the road had to be promoted by him to save union prestige.

The "hot-spot situation," of course, is the current trial in which the head of the local and two others are charged with attempting to dynamite the road, "so the government will step in and end the strike," according to a witness.

At any rate the situation is purely local, does not involve either national brotherhood officials or government railroad policy.

Unified Command

The White House has smoothed away some congressional demand for a unified army-navy-air command to some extent. Certain senators advocating such a course have been called in one by one and told by the President that Admiral King, General Marshall and General Arnold are working closely and in a fine spirit. This personal cooperation, the President maintains, has effected a unified command without officially establishing one.

Senate Tired

Even the senate is tired of itself. In these vital war times, the upper house has spent three weeks arguing the right of one of its members to his seat. Generally only 12 to 30 of the 96 senators have been present to hear the argument about Senator Langer. Leaders planned to recess for two weeks at Easter, but have given up the idea because the case has delayed legislation.

House leaders have become so disgusted with the longwinded similar trials of judicial impeachment in the senate, that they have privately adopted a policy against impeaching judges whenever possible.

Scorched Earth

Proof that the Red scorched earth policy has left Hitler's invaders wallowing in ashes of "the breadbasket of Europe," is contained in the Berlin press. These government controlled mouthpieces are now warning the German people against "exaggerated expectations" of food from the Ukraine. They naively attribute the shortage there to "low yields."

Scattered Notes

Next secretary of labor will probably be John Winant, the ambassador to London, but not until he has finished in London and Miss Perkins wants out... Jap announcement that it is pressing interned Germans of conquered South Pacific territory into local administrative duties, says the task of reorganizing local affairs in the conquered regions is "terrific," which is being handed around as good news here... So extensive is the black market in British food, the ministry has employed 800 inspectors, which is a forecast of what will be required here when rationing starts. The Chinese are not getting the 100 transport planes they could use to maintain a Burma road through the skies, at peak, but the skyway is still open and they are getting plenty of material that way.

Today and Tomorrow

Rebirth of a Nation Foreseen As Universal Service Approaches.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THE angry quarrel over the 40-hour week is an ugly looking affair, and in Europe will no doubt be advertised as a class struggle. Yet the event will show, I am confident, that the uproar is the outward sign for the next mighty move forward from business as usual into a total mobilization.

From the Gallop polls and from many sources the evidence is clear that what the people want is not only to support the fighting men to the utmost, but to live so that they may not be ashamed to look their fighting men in the face. They have fastened on the notion that there is no forty-hour week in the Battle of the Atlantic or on the Bataan Peninsula.

To be sure, they have been misinformed about what the "40-hour week" really means. But their instinct in the matter is profoundly right. They are becoming intolerant of the symbols and the reminders of the soft ways into which we fell during the period between the two wars—during the years of irresponsibility, self-complacency, self-indulgence, private and public speculation and materialism. The overtime pay provisions of the 40-hour law are a mere incident of this profound revulsion of the American spirit against the vices of a bad era in American history. The revulsion of feeling heralds the revival of the sterner American character, so hideously falsified in the jitterbug age. It marks the reappearance on the stage of history of the hard-working, hard-driving, hard-bitten, resourceful, self-reliant and relentlessly hopeful American. He has had a stomach full of being defeated and pushed around by his enemies and more than a stomach full of standing around here at home while it happens. What he wants is to clear the decks for action, every man to his post of duty no more nonsense from anybody until the enemy cries quits, and he walks once more a free man triumphant.

Universal Service

Out of this uproar will come, therefore, not some trifling amendment to the peace-time labor laws, but universal service for men and women. First we shall be registered, then we shall be classified, then invited, and then compelled to serve. It is a reasonable estimate that for war production and military service combined at least 25,000,000 men will need to change over from their peace-time occupations during the next two years, though perhaps only about eight or nine million will be called upon to leave the neighborhood where they now live. This will mean that the rest of the people will have to work and save harder than they ever dreamed of doing to keep the home fires burning.

We must not fall into the error of thinking that when we talk of universal service we mean only soldiers and workingmen at the bench. The call for "man power" will include executives, managers, superintendents, engineers. More men who know how to operate industry are urgently needed; in the crucial shipbuilding program and in the construction and supply services of the army and navy there is an imperative need for executives and production engineers and transportation experts, and also for good lawyers, men trained to analyze and grasp quickly the essentials of new and complicated problems. There are needed trained women, not only for the armed services and for war production, but no less in order to take the place of men in essential civilian works, in business, in agriculture, in the federal and local government bureaus, in many professions and in order to release other women for direct war work.

With universal service there must and will come a new spartan standard of life. Instead of quarreling meanly over wages and prices and profits, we shall, by a combination of taxes, compulsory saving, shortage of luxury and gadget goods, the rationing of necessities and, for essentials that are short, guaranteed supplies, put ourselves upon a very plain standard of life.

How To Live

With what is left over in the way of materials and facilities and labor that are not needed for the war economy, we shall have the greatest opportunity since the days of the pioneers to exercise our wits and our ingenuity, to practice instead of merely to celebrate the virtues of private enterprise. For necessity is the mother of invention, and the art of making much out of little is not only one of the secrets of success in war but also one of the secrets of how to live an interesting and useful and satisfactory life.

Abundance, like over-eating in the individual, makes nations fat and puts them to sleep. It is in leanness and in strinkency, when living is hard, and the reason for living is high, that men find their souls and their hearts are at peace. Let no one then bemoan his rubber tires and his sugar, and his over-heated house, and his leisure, and his vacations, and his private ambitions, or worry about his post-war career and his post-war business. Let him think instead of men and women who are learning the facts of life and becoming equal to dealing with them. The things we shall demand of ourselves now are not, except where men die in glory but irreparably, a sacrifice at all. They are incidents and aspects of the rebirth of the nation after decades of private materialism in which, more surely than by the ambitions of our ruthless enemies, we were ourselves destroying the virtues which make a people great and worthy of itself.

Let us not, then, be confounded by the uproar about us. A mighty people has awakened, and the ancient spirit is reborn by which it conquered a continent and made America the land of promise to mankind. For at every birth there is anxiety and there is pain.

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Monday, March 28, 1932.

It was announced that Marion county would ask for five carloads of flour to be ground from part of 40,000,000 bushels of wheat the federal farm board had turned over to the Red Cross for distribution among distressed families. The announcement was made by Dr. N. Sifritt, county health commissioner and county Red Cross chairman, after he had totaled requisitions of the city and the townships.

Edward A. Selter, 48, died suddenly at the John James farm northeast of Agosta.

Contributions were made to the Margaret G. Harder Pan-American scholarship fund and to the Community fund at a meeting of the Current Topic club at the home of Mrs. C. J. Furman at Summit street. Mrs. C. M. Houser and Mrs. Wilbur Symes were named delegates to the annual state convention at Sandusky in May.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Bernard C. Moloney of North Prospect street.

City council authorized employment of a day captain for the police force in addition to the night captain who had been on duty for some time.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Tuesday, March 28, 1922.

Chancellor Wirth of Germany, addressed the reichstag, rejected the demands of the Allies for financial control of Germany. He reminded the Allies they had promised in the treaty of Versailles not to touch Germany's right of self-determination. He said he would continue the policy of fulfilment, a policy of meeting the previous indemnity demands of the entente.

Physical and moral bankruptcy for the nation unless a living wage was paid to workers was prophecied by B. M. Jewell, head of the railway employes department of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement to the U. S. labor board at Chicago. He was presenting the argument of the shop crafts unions against wage cuts asked by the railroads.

Jacob C. Ringer, retired farmer, died at his home on Pearl street at the age of 93. He had been a resident of Marion 72 years.

The feature picture at the Marion theater was "The Love Flower," starring Richard Barthelmess and Carol Dempster, and at the Grand the feature was "A Virgin Paradise," advertised as "a story of the jungle and civilized hypocrisy."

The Y.M.B. club celebrated its 23rd anniversary by entertaining the husbands of members at dinners and cards at the Templeton Coffee Shoppe. Among those present were Mrs. Barnie Knofler and Mrs. Frank Paddock, two charter members. Taking part in the program were Mrs. Carl Reiff, president, Mrs. Frank Harmon and Frank T. Campbell.

No Road Pork Barrel

By Jack Stinnett
Washington Correspondent.

ROAD builders and their friends haven't caught on yet that highways-as-usual are out of style for the duration. They are still coming to Washington to promote their projects.

Congress appropriated $150,000,000 for national defense highways, but only after a lot of fiddling around and the passage of one measure which President Roosevelt vetoed on the grounds that too many road builders in congress still were thinking in terms of "political" allocation of highway money.

On the basis of "first war needs first," $100,000,000 already has been allocated, and construction is under way on some projects. This is what "first war needs first" means:

Aside from the access roads to new military encampments, there are such vital needs as—let us say — the new Ford bomber plant at Ypsilanti, Mich. This new factory will employ around 50,000 persons. A pre-survey indicates that 22,000 private cars will be used in getting labor to and from work. Plant officials say that 25 per cent of the raw materials will come in by truck. 60 per cent of finished products will move out that way.

This is only one of 730 plants in Michigan supplying war materials.

In order to get a new highway constructed these days, it first is necessary to convince the army and navy that it is vital from a military standpoint. But there is one more important hurdle: the war production board. It can say even to the army and navy: "Which do you want: a road that the soldiers and sailors can use; or a road that will double the ships, planes, tanks and guns now rolling off the assembly lines?"

That's why "highways-as-usual" or even partially strategic highways will have to wait.

Cherry Blossoms

It's scarcely worth mentioning but Washington's cherry blossom festival is out. No one has said so officially, but that's not necessary.

The two purposes of the festival were to signalize good will between the United States and Japan and to whoop up tourist trade in the capital. A spring invasion of tourists to Washington this year would be about as welcome as a swarm of locusts—and good will for Japan has been suspended for the duration.

Old timers in the capital are recalling that when the first shipment of trees from Japan arrived in 1909, they were full of insect pests, root gall worm and fungus diseases. They had to be destroyed. Three years later another shipment arrived. The trees bloomed, but bore no fruit—like Japanese good will.

Capt. Belch

Seems He Had To Strive Hard Getting His Commission and Now He's Going to Australia.

By DAMON RUNYON

COMMUNIQUE from the Broadway front: Last night I am sitting in Lindy's restaurant thinking of not much, when who comes in but a friend of mine by the name of Belch and I am glad to see him as I just hear that he gets a position as a captain in the army and I wish to extend my congratulations to him. In fact he is in a uniform at this very moment.

But as soon as he sits down with me I can see that he is quite indignant about something as his brow is very dark and he commences uttering words which I can by no means repeat here and from what he says I judge he is greatly displeased with the war department in Washington, D. C. To tell the truth, he states that the war department is a numbskull.

"Look," this Belch says, "what do you suppose the war department wishes me to do? It wishes me to go some place such as Australia to serve with troops. Do you ever hear of such an outrageous idea?"

Well, I say that in time of war some strange notions come up in all government departments in Washington and especially in the war department but that it is inadvisable for us to discuss these matters in a public place as J. Edgar Hoover may be hiding under the tables although of course I am only joking when I say this because I know very well J. Edgar Hoover does not hide under tables when he can sit at them.

"ALL right," Belch says, "let us lower our voices. But," he says, "this is an injustice that should really be shouted from the housetops. Everybody knows how hard I work to get my commission. I am in Washington, D. C., going on three weeks.

"While I am there I run here and there and see this guy and that guy and I have the support of some of the most prominent New Dealers in this town including two district leaders, but even then they stall me off until I am half crazy.

"Furthermore," he says, "when I do finally get my commission I am greatly disappointed to find it is only a captain, because a guy of my influence is entitled to be at least a brigadier general. I have to change the insignia I have put on the uniform I order in advance. Then just as I get ready to go home the war department sends me word that I will be assigned to troops."

"Well, Belch," I say, "I suppose the war department figures that when a guy is anxious to get in the army he is also anxious to make himself useful."

"Why," Belch says, "I am anxious to make myself useful, but," he says, "not with troops, and especially if they are troops in Australia or in any other place except near my house because I can not spare much of my time to them. Who will look after my business unless I am personally on the job every day? I feel that I do plenty for the war department already by accepting my position as captain when I have a brigadier general job coming to me. By the way," he says, 'kindly do not forget to address me by my title."

"VERY good, captain," I say. "Of course I can resign," he says, "but then I can no longer wear my uniform and that will be a blow to my wife as she is very proud of my uniform. And yet," he says, "it is absolutely impossible for me to get away to go anywhere with troops at this time. It is not only my business, but I am playing in a tournament at my golf club next month and my presence there is very necessary, indeed. If I know I am to be inconvenienced in this manner I will never undertake to become anything in the army."

"Well, Belch," I says, "I can see where you will be greatly put out, to be sure, if you have to go away, especially with the tournament coming up. But," I say, "maybe if you write to President Roosevelt and explain this situation he will speak to the war department about your case."

"Thanks," Belch says. "It is an idea, anyway, although I hear there are a lot of letters on his desk already from majors and lieutenant colonels on the same subject. By the way," he says, "I must remind you again to address me as captain."

Ships on Short Order

Because they had no knowledge of the things that supposedly could not be done in shipbuilding, a group of West Coast construction men who never built a ship until the emergency struck have revolutionized the industry, slashed building time and introduced innovations that are speeding production of the wartime freighter fleet.

The guiding genius of the group is Henry J. Kaiser, builder of Bonneville dam, whose experience was confined to bridges, dams and highways, until he accepted a contract for 30 ships for the British a little more than a year ago. According to Frank J. Taylor in The Reader's Digest for April, Kaiser's engineers and construction men turned out their first ship in 197 days, cut the time to 125 days for the 12th ship of the order and expect to reduce it to 105 days before the last one is completed.

Working now in five shipyards on orders for more than 400 cargo and troop ships for the U. S. Maritime Commission and the British, the Kaiser technique insists on about three times as much space as the traditional shipyard: "Room for a lot of men to work without getting in each other's way." Instead of laying the keel in the ways and then building the entire ship on it, Kaiser builds prows, galleys and other sections separately in different "fabricating bays" and then assembles the gigantic pieces with supercranes, lifting weights which only dam builders have had experience in handling.

To avoid the headache of launchings, Kaiser did away with conventional shipways in one yard and used basins which are flooded to float out the completed ship. Another typical innovation is the building of deckhouses and other assemblies upside down to avoid inconvenient and slow overhead welding. Instead of having a crew move a heavy plate through a punch press, the plate is left where one man drills holes as fast as a gang could get the job done before. Where 200 to 900 men were the most that could work on a ship under conventional methods, up to 1,500 can be kept busy by Kaiser's methods.

Veteran ship men who were aghast at the unorthodox methods of Kaiser and his "amateurs" are now adopting the new short cuts, and the success of those methods is one of the most heartening achievements of the nation's war effort.

Self Propelled Shells Fired by Cannon of Future

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 28—Science has fashioned its first cannon of the future, to shoot shells which fly by their own power with jet propulsion

This weapon is small, a light metal tube three inches in diameter, four feet long. The shells are six inches long, a little more than two inches thick.

It is entirely experimental, but is a start on a principle recognized as sound by aviation engineers. The gun was designed by Edward P. Chandler, New York engineer, and is described in the journal of the American Rocket Society.

The purpose is to experiment with the jets of burning powder, gasoline, liquid oxygen and other power sources, to drive the shell. Jets which drive an 18-foot long projectile seven miles have been developed by Dr. Robert Goddard in New Mexico.

The new experiment seeks to adapt available information to explosive shells. Power and distance already are available. But problems of accuracy in flight, cheapness of construction and types of fuel have yet to be solved.

Aimed at speeding delivery of cash for plant expansion and materials, the plan provides for the RFC to assume up to 100 per cent of the risk, and allows applications to clear in a few days

118 DOZEN EGGS IN THEATER COLLECTION

Misnamed "Donald Duck" Stars In Kiwanis Show.

One hundred and eighteen dozen eggs, including two duck eggs laid by misnamed "Donald Duck", who was one of the prizes in last year's Kiwanis club Easter egg hunt, were the "admissions" paid by some 700 boys and girls at the annual egg hunt theater party this morning at the Ohio theater.

Donald Duck was the sensation of the party. She accompanied her mistress, Charlene Long, 10, of 290 Powhattan street. Donald waddled into the lobby and was immediately the center of attention.

When Charlene presented the ticket takers with two duck eggs she picked Donald up and carried her into the show. The duck remained in her mistress' lap throughout the hour and a half program, clucking softly at times and apparently enjoying her first theater party.

City firemen were on duty as "ticket takers" and placed the eggs in crates, which were taken to Hotel Harding for storage. Next week the eggs will be dyed in the hotel kitchen in preparation for the egg hunt next Saturday morning at McKinley park.

Fire Chief T. J. McFarland worked with his men in "taking tickets" and maintaining order. Firemen assigned to the party were Capt. O. A. Sifritt, B. E. Sullivan, James Fisher, C. W. Stafford, Robert Swisher, W. R. Isslelb, Charles Erow and R. M. Miller of Central station. Capt. C. W. Stafford, James Riddel and Charles Thompson of No. 2 station, and Capt. George Fetter and William Nusser from No. 3 station.

The program consisted of a feature picture, "Father's Son," with John Litel and Frieda Inescourt, a western short and a cartoon.

PROBE ORDERED BY COMMITTEE

Senate Group To Investigate High Octane Aviation Gas Situation.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 28—The senate investigating committee has uncovered evidence warranting an investigation of the whole wartime aviation gasoline program, Democrat of Missouri, disclosed today.

He said the committee was studying testimony that Standard Oil of New Jersey helped establish gasoline refining plants in pre-war Germany. In addition, Truman said, the committee received information that while several major companies, including the Standard Oil group, received government contracts to produce the 100 octane fuel used in American warplanes, independent firms were not sharing in this business.

"We have reports," Truman told reporters, "that the big companies have been given the inside track and that they probably will be able to pay for the plants the government is building for them out of the profits they make on the sale of gasoline to the government."

Truman said he expected the committee to look into this matter after it had concluded its current investigation into synthetic rubber.

As a part of that inquiry the committee heard testimony from Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, yesterday that a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey had cooperated with Nazi government interests in the consideration of an aviation gasoline plant in Germany in 1938, before the war broke out.

Characterizing this as a contribution toward Germany's later productive success, Arnold said it was an example of "simple minded people following the dictates of a foreign government" by participating in the German autarchy program.

Recommending the registration and public explanation of all future cartel agreements between American and foreign firms, Arnold said he was willing to "let bygones be bygones" as far as concerned Standard Oil's past connection with I. G. Farbenindustrie, German dye trust. He previously had testified that Standard Oil's agreement with the Nazi trust had prevented American development of synthetic rubber.

The committee will resume hearings Tuesday with Standard officials on the stand.

Arnold's charge that Standard Oil hindered production of synthetic rubber in the United States was challenged by the president of the company, William S. Farish, as "without foundation."

JAP POSITIONS IN PHILIPPINES RAIDED

Both Efforts Successful, War Dept. Reports.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 28 — The war department reported today that the Philippine defenders made two successful raids on the Japanese and that anti-aircraft gunners on the fortified island of Corregidor shot down one heavy bomber.

A communique said the raids were on the Bataan peninsula and at Zamboanga some 500 miles to the south on the island of Mindanao.

In the latter raid, American-Filipino patrols penetrated enemy lines to within less than a mile of the city to attack an outpost, and sustained no casualties.

On Bataan, American artillery blasting at enemy troop and truck concentrations, silenced one Japanese battery, the communique said.

The bomber was shot down during the fourth successive day of virtually continuous air attacks on Corregidor. The war department said that the anti-aircraft guns forced the raiders to such heights that bombing caused virtually no damage.

Meanwhile batteries on Corregidor and adjacent fortified islands shelled enemy gun emplacements on the south shore of Manila bay.

REPORT LISTS WORK OF SALVATION ARMY

Review of 1941 Presented to Board by Major Heard.

A report on the work for the year 1941 was presented by Major Joseph Heard, head of the Salvation Army, at a meeting of the Army's advisory board Friday night. The occasion also honored Lieutenant Dorothy Tindall, who has been in charge of the young people's work here for approximately a year, and will leave soon to make her home in Van Wert. Miss Tindall, who is the fiancee of Captain Howard Burr of Van Wert, next week will go to Cleveland where her wedding will take place early in April.

Harold Grigsby, representing the board, presented Lieutenant Tindall with an electric toastwicher, a gift from the board members. Lieutenant Tindall responded and brief talks were given by the members. In his talk Mr. Grigsby praised the work of the Salvation Army and stated he did not know what a town like Marion would be like without this organization.

C. Z. Zachman, chairman of the board, was in charge of the meeting. Welcomed as new members were Mrs. Paul Knaus, Dr. S. M. Ingmire and A. T. Allen. Mr. Zachman announced that the Kiwanis club expected to attend the Salvation Army services in a body next Wednesday night and asked the board to attend if possible.

The members were guests of Major and Mrs. Heard at dinner. The table held a centerpiece of roses and favors were miniature American Flags. Dr. S. M. Ingmire spoke the invocation and the board was dismissed with prayer by John H. Clark.

Board Plans Control Over Rents

conditions under control, Marion will handle this situation without the government stepping in, Karl W. Schell, committee member said. "But if we don't crack down and conditions get out of control, then the city will have the United States government in here handling the situation and landlords and tenants alike will realize that the question of high rents isn't something to be bandied around or taken advantage of."

Attending the meeting with the mayor and Colonel Huling were Mrs. A. M. Hutchinson, J. J. Stafford, Mr. Schell, Fred G. Patton and Carl Fisher. Two members of the committee were not present, Harry J. Barnhart, who is in Florida, and George Turner.

"Gougers" Rated Low

"Rent gouging is one of the most unpatriotic things I know of," Mrs. Hutchinson declared and the committee agreed.

"Fair rents are patriotic, not only to the government, but to the city and to our neighbors," Mayor Snare said. "It involves people who have lived and worked in Marion for many years, who are working in defense industries as important as the new war production program. Fair rents are the landlords' and tenants' war duty."

Colonel Huling, who has been engaged in war production efforts for more than a year, complimented the committee on its early steps to control rents and expressed amazement at its immediate approach to the problem.

"You are very fortunate to have started," the army administrator said. "I think you have a fair chance of making a going thing of this phase of our war effort."

Colonel Huling expressed appreciation of having been invited to sit in at the meeting and was assured by Mayor Snare that "Marion is going to work together and we're going to do the job by ourselves. We can and will show the government that this city can handle its own problems. There's no question that the government will step in and handle it for us if we don't show that we're willing to cooperate in winning this war."

"Exorbitant" Defined

Defining "exorbitant" rents, the committee said that reports of rents raised from $25 to $50 and $30 to $60 a month come under that heading.

It was agreed that "fair" increases should involve only those cases where maintenance costs will rise, and that in these instances the increases should be comparable only to the increased maintenance cost. Apartment houses in particular, where heat and light, and sometimes water are furnished, come in this category, in the opinion of the committee.

Colonel Huling expressed an understanding of the problem faced by the city and said he felt the duty of landlords towards men and women and their families is an acute problem of military defense. He agreed with the committee that Marion residents with homes and rooms to provide are a vital source of the defense effort.

Mr. Schell told the committee of a recent state meeting of realtors in Columbus, at which the matter of fair rents was the major topic.

He said he was told that Canton is "sitting tight," trying to work out some fair increase to meet rising maintenance costs, and cited Columbus as another example of a city where the local fair rent committee is handling the situation admirably.

"I think the committee understands our local situation well enough that it can handle any cases and be fair to both landlords and tenants," Mayor Snare said.

Bulletin Cited

The mayor and committee members discussed a recent bulletin issued by the office of price administration regarding the fair rent situation in the event a government arbitrator is appointed in Marion. Following are several questions and answers from the bulletin:

Q. Are there any other remedies against a landlord who demands or receives rent in excess of the maximum fixed by the administrator?

A. Yes. Briefly, in addition to nominal penalties, the following remedies are available: (1) The administrator may secure a permanent or temporary injunction restraining order or other order enjoining the practice; and (2) the tenant or the administrator on behalf of the United States may after Aug. 1, 1942, bring an action for $50 or treble the amount by which the rent exceeded the maximum rent, whichever is the greater, plus reasonable attorney's fees and costs as determined by the court.

Q. After the administrator has established maximum rents in a particular area, can he issue regulations relating to services furnished in connection with the occupation of the rented premises?

A. Yes. The administrator is authorized to fix maximum rents for "housing accommodations;" "housing accommodations" include "any building, structure, or part thereof or land appurtenant thereto, or any other real or personal property rented or offered for rent for living or dwelling purposes (including houses, apartments, hotels, rooming or boarding house accommodations, and other properties used for living or dwelling purposes) together with all privileges, services, furnishings, furniture and facilities connected with the use or occupancy of such property."

Q. Are fair rent committees a part of the new rent control law?

A. No. They are purely local groups and have no official status under the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942. These committees may still perform a useful function to their community in attempting to stabilize rents. If they are successful in their endeavors, they may avoid the need for rent control. They may likewise be useful as advisors to such rent control officials as may be appointed to administer the Act in the community.

Q. What provisions, if any, does the Act contain protecting the tenant against eviction?

A. The administrator is vested with broad powers of regulating renting or leasing practices, including practices relating to the recovery of possession. In connection with housing accommodations which, in his judgment, would result in rent increases inconsistent with the purpose of the Act. Further it is unlawful for any person to remove or accept to remove a tenant or occupant or to refuse to renew his lease because he has taken or proposes to take action authorized or required by the Act or any regulation or order thereunder.

Q. Are business properties subject to the rent control law?

A. No. Only properties used for living or dwelling purposes including houses, apartments, hotels, rooming or boarding houses, accommodations and other properties used for living or dwelling purposes are subject to rent control.

Q. Do the rent control provisions of the Act apply to assignments of leases or sub-leases made by a tenant?

A. Yes. Assignments of leases and sub-leases are subject to the provisions of the Act.

Q. If rent control is ordered for a particular area as of what date will the maximum rent be fixed?

A. The selection of the maximum rent date in any particular area is vested in the administrator who is charged with the duty of giving "due consideration to rents prevailing on or about April 1, 1941," so far as is practicable. If defense activities before or after April 1, 1941 resulted or threatened to result in rent increases inconsistent with the purposes of the Act, then the administrator may fix a date other than April 1, 1941, which does not reflect such increases or threatened increases, but this date must not be earlier than April 1, 1940.

Q. Will the local authorities be consulted with reference to fixing the maximum rent date?

A. Yes. To such an extent as the administrator determines to be practicable, he will consider any recommendations which may be made by state and local officials concerned with housing or rental conditions in the affected area.

Q. If a maximum rent date is fixed by the administrator, may the landlord and tenant voluntarily agree to a higher rental?

A. No. It is unlawful, regardless of any contract, lease or other obligation entered into, for the landlord to demand or receive any rent in excess of the maximum fixed by the administrator. (A landlord who wilfully violates the Act shall on conviction thereof be subject to a fine of not more than $5,000, or to imprisonment for not more than one year or both.)

Prefer Home Control

The committee agreed that Marion landlords and tenants would prefer action by the local fair rent committee stabilizing the rent situation, rather than face the prospect of government intervention and the resulting investigations and penalties.

It was agreed that any action taken in the near future will be solely to further the defense effort. The committee discussed the necessity of government-built homes in Marion to take care of the influx of workers.

Marion County Board To Aid Farmers

All farmers in the Scioto Ordnance Plant area will be offered a broad program of assistance in connection with the multitude of problems arising from their evacuation, the Marion county USDA (United States Department of Agriculture) War Board announced today following a lengthy meeting yesterday in the AAA office on East Church street.

The six federal agencies which make up the War Board will take the first step in its new program when a survey will be started Tuesday among the approximately 120 affected farmers.

Survey questionnaires will be taken to each farm home in the area to get detailed information about what kind of problems each individual farmer is facing.

These will be assembled, studied and analyzed to determine what kind of help is most needed, and the board will then attempt to provide that assistance.

Scope of Aid

The board, through its various agencies, is prepared to offer aid in the way of helping farmers locate new farms, help them find storage for equipment if they plan to wait until later to buy a farm, arrange financial help either for the purchase of a new farm or for moving expenses and possibly to help in some way those farmers planning to dispose of their livestock, feed and farm equipment. Various other forms of assistance also will be offered.

The board announced that farmers in the area are invited to call at the office of the AAA chairman of the War Board, at 220 East Church street to seek any of the various services the board is prepared to offer. This office will serve as a clearing house for the board's activities, and after a study of individual requests the applicants will be referred to the proper agency within the War Board.

List of Agencies

These agencies and the man which represents each on the War Board are: Civilian Conservation Corps, E. A. Daum; Production Credit association, H. A. Mayers; Rural Electric administration, Foster Davidson; Agricultural Extension Service Agent, Homer Parteus; Agricultural Adjustment administration, C. F. Harper; Farm Security Administration, Earl C. Sleeth.

In Marion yesterday to meet with the board were Ellis Reese of Columbus, state relocation supervisor of the Farm Security Administration, and Paul C. Williams of Sandusky, also a representative of the FSA.

Housing Survey Report Prepared

A. L. Guckert, state director of the Federal Housing Administration, spent the day in Marion yesterday compiling a survey report which he sent to Washington as a basis for federal action in determining whether or not Marion may be granted a defense area status.

Mr. Guckert said although details of his survey are not available, his report deals primarily with the need which will arise for increased housing facilities with the influx of workers in connection with the Scioto Ordnance Plant.

Such a report, he said, is always submitted before a defense area decision is given. Such a decision must be executed by presidential proclamation after the area in question has been considered in the light of two major conditions, namely (1) the priorities situation and (2) Title Six of the national housing administration.

Title Six, Mr. Guckert said, has to do with the setting up of defense housing areas and the circumstances which call for the naming of a defense area as such.

Anywhere from 30 to 90 days is the usual length of time it takes for the approval or rejection of a defense area petition, Mr. Guckert said. However, in an emergency situation in which authority has already been given to begin the defense project, it is assumed the approval for the subsequent federal projects will be given as a matter of formality.

Formal approval of the petition will be announced in Marion immediately after it is given, Mr. Guckert said.

Representatives of Marion's three banks and two building and loan companies met with Mr. Guckert yesterday afternoon and discussed the probable plan of procedure to be undertaken in conducting a defense housing program.

Mr. Guckert was in Marion about two months ago when the Chamber of Commerce was considering the possibility of obtaining a defense area status for a separate housing program. The situation was not then considered urgent enough to warrant the granting of such a status.

JUST THINGS

By EDNA S. DUTTON

Maybe

IT can happen any day now, that thunder storm which comes each springtime to waken the frogs from their winter sleep. It's in the air and is bound to come as the days are checked off the calendar. Already the fields are dotted with wobbly-legged lambs and frisky little pigs that resemble miniature hobby horses when they run. And we're asking you if there is anything prettier to look at than a brand new baby calf with its velvet eyes and soapy nose? And there are signs of the times inside as well as out—the semi-annual germ-ousting. Right now, we're going to throw away ever so many things that clutter up closets and drawers, but we'll wager the well-known doughnut that just about everything goes back. Somehow we're just made that way.

Spaghetti

SOUNDS silly, doesn't it, that song about Yankee Doodle going to town on a pony and sticking a feather in his cap and calling himself macaroni. According to those who know it does make sense. In Europe, back in the 18th century, so they say, boys and girls of wealth traveled to other countries to complete their culture and education, bringing back home many foreign ways and manners, as proof and to lend an air of distinction. In Italy they found macaroni and were so taken with it they decided it was worthy of a place in London. It came to be a favorite dish at swank clubs where "dandies" of the upper crust dined, and in time their more conservative and proletarian friends dubbed them "macaronies" which amounts to today's "playboys."

Hieroglyphics

JUST what is your favorite hieroglyphic as you sit, pencil in hand at the telephone? Do you work puzzles, write names, draw pictures or make out tomorrow's menus? Just try checking up on yourself and you'll be surprised. We can draw as nifty a treble clef as anyone would want to see, we also make likely looking cups and saucers and when we wax artistic with a vengeance we go in for wild rose design in a great big way. Maybe it all dates back to the days when it was the thing to "cancel names", s'pose?

First Aid Test

Some folks get all the breaks. Home nursing classes and first aiders attend classes, study theories and see demonstrations with members of the classes acting as "patients." One class of air raid wardens and first aid students, however, recently had an opportunity to prove how good they were when one of their members fainted. The students, we're told, left it to the teacher to bring him back to consciousness.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge and Her Guards Reach Diswell's Cottage, Then Madge Explains Details of Plant to Watson.

AT BILL'S warning I saw Gus brace himself in the low seat opposite me and I knew I was in front of me, so I sat as I could lose my balance he could break my fall.

Unexpectedly we emerged from into a clearing, where the road widened a bit and skirted the shores of a tiny mountain lake.

Across the lake on a steeply sloping shore stood a picturesque cottage of stone, with a porch facing the lake. But I looked in vain for a driveway broad enough to accommodate an automobile.

"Jim Watson says the old man don't keep no car," Gus volunteered, anticipating my question.

"But Watson says for the last month or two he's had a man working for him—somebody he got from off somewhere; nobody around here knows him. And he's about as queer as Diswell; never goes anywhere."

The car ahead of us was in sight now. It had stopped, and the slighter man was running back toward us. Joe brought our big car to a stop and Jim Watson—Gus identified him to me in a whisper—came up to the front of it. Joe opened the door and we heard Watson's low-voiced query.

"What's your plan?"

"Ask them," I told Gus," if there's some underbrush just ahead where you can hide the cars, and some of you keep a lookout for the gangsters' car."

"Okay," Gus whispered back, and went to the front of the car where I heard him put the query to Watson.

"Hell, yes," Watson replied. "There's a dandy place just a few feet further on, where there used to be a wood road, but it's never used now. You could hide six cars in there, and we can fix it so they'll never know any car has left this road."

"Then let's get going," Gus said. Jim Watson turned at once and sprinted down the road to his car. Joe started ours, and in another two minutes we were in the old wood road, completely hidden by underbrush, and all the men were busily obliterating the tire tracks.

"Those babies will never know there's a soul here," Jim Watson said, when he came back to the cars. Then he said the storekeeper, Branchman, stared in amazement as they caught sight of me.

"I think I shall have to explain," I told them, apologetically. "I am the person who wishes to see Frank or Lowell Gus interrupted with me to the front door, and I know that my father, of the government service, who sent me on this errand, would wish part of you to hide yourselves as near the house as possible, and the rest of you want near the road to see what the gangsters do when they come."

"Don't forget the whistle," Gus said militantly, and I raised it in my hand and showed it to them.

"Two short whistles," I said, feeling extremely ridiculous, "will mean that I need Gus only but one sharp blast will mean that you all are needed but that you must come cautiously."

"We get you," Jim Watson said, "and we'll be on hand."

"Thank you," I replied. "And now is there any way of getting to the front door of that cottage without going back along the road to the gate?"

The feud continues, with interruptions, when Mature meets and falls in love with Mitchell's lovely daughter, played by Miss Grable.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D

Inhaling Solids

I have just been consulting with a friend whose child had the dreadful experience of inhaling a safety pin into the windpipe. It was several weeks before this was discovered or suspected. With modern instruments and skill it is possible to remove these foreign bodies with ease in a way which would have been impossible thirty years ago.

The astonishing thing about the case and the great lesson about all such accidents is that the child had no idea whatever that the safety pin had passed into the glottis. There was no choking or gagging. It simply slid down past the vocal cords and lodged in the windpipe.

The modern general practitioner must be on the alert for the symptoms of foreign bodies in the bronchial tubes and be able to make the diagnosis at an early moment so that our modern, effective treament can be instituted. The first thing he should learn is that in about one-half the cases there is no recollection as to when the foreign body was inhaled. I knew a man who harbored an atomizer tip in his bronchial tube for nearly a year and only by searching his memory could he remember that there was a time when he discovered a tip missing from the bathroom closet.

These patients usually go to a general practitioner with symptoms of bronchitis, coughing, asthma, profuse expectoration from irritation which the foreign body sets up, and the knowledge is becoming widespread that under these circumstances a foreign body should always be suspected and examination instituted with the X-ray or the bronchoscope.

The second terrible lesson of the case is that the child held the safety pin in its mouth in imitation of its mother. The great army of those who hold foreign bodies in their mouths should be demobilized. This includes mothers and nurses attending infants during the diaper period, dressmakers, toothpick chewers, etc., etc.

Nearly half the cases of foreign body inspiration are in children under three years of age. This also holds a lesson in prevention. A child can be trained not to put small objects in its mouth.

Check the play yard for small objects before allowing the baby to play there. Do not rush for a child with a foreign body in its mouth. Calmly ask the child for the object. Do not hold a child upside down to shake out a foreign body from the windpipe.

Statistics show that all patients who inspired pieces of toys and jewelry had done so in childhood, under one and one-half years of age. The lesson is to keep small objects out of reach. They are just as contented to play with larger objects.

Inhalation of bones and hard food remnants is rare in children, but wearers of false dentures stand very high in the percentage list of such accidents.

The most dangerous form of foreign body inhalation is that of peanut shells, parts of peanuts or other nuts. In fact, all vegetable foreign substances cause the most severe reactions in the trachea and the bronchial tubes.

PVT. LOUIS K. O.'s SIMON IN SIXTH ROUND

Army Emergency Relief Fund Shares in $132,430 Gate.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 28—Massive Abe Simon and his mite of a pilot, Jimmie Johnston, still were prattling about the injustice of it all today, but the Army Emergency Relief fund had a right champion-ship bout at Madison Square Garden last night gone down in the records as a knockout victory for Joe Louis in 16 seconds of the sixth round.

Not that there was even one rugged individualist in the crowd of 18,220 fans who expected a different ending. The fans, who contributed a gross gate of $132,430.41, knew that eventually Abe's lumpy torso would be stretched out.

The champion, donating his entire purse for the second time, was expected to reduce his foe before six rounds. But when the end did come, Abe was not stretched out. He painfully was hoisting himself erect at the count of 10, and he and Johnston vehemently claim Abe beat the count.

Anyway, Abe was a beaten man. He had gone down twice before, the bell stopping the count each time. In the second round he toppled like a felled tree, and his seconds, like tugboats, nudged the groggy leviathan into dock for first aid. The count had reached two.

The end of the fifth found Simon seated placidly in his own corner. The count reached six before his emergency squad could shove a stool under him.

Not that Abe didn't have his moments. As early as the first round he withstood as heavy a bombardment as the champion could muster. He didn't go down, and as the bell clanged to start the second round he grinned affably at the referee, giving a wink to show that everything was under control.

It was, briefly. Like a huge, hairy mule he kept boring in, so awkwardly at positively was clever, and the ever-patient Louis waited to crash through those big arms and start his usual murderous flurry.

He finally caught Abe late in the round, crashing rights and lefts off the jaw until Abe crumpled. It seemed impossible that the giant could come out for the third round, but he not only came out, he won an edge in it, as well as in the fourth, although the third was taken from him because of an accidental low blow.

Louis got the range again in the fifth, and the knockdown just before the bell was the prelude to the finale. Louis just walked out to start the sixth, swung a left hook and a crushing right, and Abe went down. He crawled to the ropes, and Referee Eddie Josephs ruled the giant still was down at 10.

Abe wandered disconsolately about the ring voicing protests, and Johnston is threatening to demand that Josephs' license be revoked when the commission meets next Tuesday.

His ability to absorb punishment won Simon the admiration of all. But he was up against the top man, a soldier who bought $2,500 worth of tickets to his own fight, to give to his buddies.

It was Louis' 21st title defense, and his weight was his heaviest—207½. Simon touched 255¼. In an earlier meeting Simon went out in the 13th round.

Private Louis is resting today for another fight—the big fight. As Under Secretary of War Robert W. Patterson said in a brief speech from the ring before the bout:

"Joe Louis is from the U. S. army. And where is there a better place for a champion to come from? It is an army of champions engaged in a championship fight, and it is going to win."

WALKER IS ANSWER TO REDLEG DREAM

Ex-Cleveland Star May Repeat Werber's Performance.

By The Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla., March 28—Almost exactly three years ago the Cincinnati Reds bought an American league third baseman named Bill Werber, and he promptly sparked them to two National league flags and one world championship. This time it is an American league outfielder they have bought, "Gee" Walker, and anyone who likes to play hunches is welcome to the tip.

That Walker can bat the Reds to the title is, of course, a question that only time will answer, but make no mistake, he will lighten up the National league race. It no longer is safe to regard it strictly as a two-club tussle between Brooklyn and St. Louis. Almost anything Walker might do is going to benefit the Reds.

While the former Cleveland Indian was taking his first workout with his new club yesterday, Manager Bill McKechnie was asked if he thought he might have won his third straight pennant last year if he had had a .360 hitter in left field.

"I won't say we would have won," he said, thoughtfully, "but we would have come very close."

SPORTS LEND HAND TO RELIEF DRIVE

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK—The new emergency relief set-up the army started when some one discovered draftees' families could be just as needy as those of regular soldiers, threw its program into high gear today.

A world heavyweight championship fight that figures to net more than $50,000 already is a reality. From there, the program is laid out to cover a flock of other sports, the stage and military exhibitions, to mention a few of the things the directors figure will keep the dollars pouring in for the folks at home.

"We have no set goal yet, so far as a definite sum is concerned," explained Col. John Thomas Taylor of the war department's public relations bureau at Washington. "But we'll have one soon. We have to work it all out yet."

At the moment, the working-out process includes a big hand from sports.

FOUR TEAMS VIE FOR CLASS A TITLE TODAY

Akron North Favored To Cop Crown.

By The Associated Press

KENT, O., March 28—Backed by the prestige of two previous titles, Akron North's Vikings battle it out today with Toledo Central Catholic, Xenia Central and Darkhorse Canton Lehman for the 1942 Class A state basketball championship.

After piloting the Vikings to 22 wins in 24 starts, Coach "Lu" Mosfield sends them against Toledo Catholic Central—triumphant in 28 of 30—in the 2 p. m. semi-final at Wills gym.

Akron, which won the championship in 1935 and 1939 and lost in the finals to Dover in 1937, is the only bar to some precedent-breaking. No team ever has won from Toledo, Canton or Xenia since the Ohio High School Athletic association took charge of the meet in 1923, and a Toledo triumph also would make it the first time for a Catholic school in the Class A event. Martins Ferry, the defending champion, was eliminated in the earlier going.

The Ohio High School Athletic board announced at Ravenna last night that the decentralized cage tournament would be adopted for both Class A and Class B playoffs next year.

The board also received a proposal to split Class A schools into two groups of large and smaller schools. The board reported that Commissioner H. R. Townsend approved the plan.

OHIO CLASS D LOOP ORDERED DISBANDED

Marion Not Mentioned in New Arrangements.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 28—Judge W. G. Bramham, minor league commissioner, ordered the Class D Ohio State baseball league disbanded but President Joe Donnelly said today he still hoped to operate with four teams this season.

Donnelly said he believed the league would be permitted to function if he could "get the teams set" quickly.

"The whole thing hinges on whether Grover Hartley has sold the Findlay franchise," the league president asserted. "If he has, the league will play."

Fostoria and Mansfield are "definitely out," he declared, leaving four teams—Findlay, Fremont, Lima and Tiffin.

The loop was ordered dissolved because clubs failed to post guarantees by Feb. 15. Fred Rinehart of Fremont reported a deadline misunderstanding.

Donnelly explained that his correspondence with Bramham led him to believe the March 22 date was satisfactory.

Indiana Sophomore Upsets Dodds in Cleveland Ra

Buckeye Relay Team, Bob Wright, Charlie Beeth All Win.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, March 28 — Watch out for Earl Mitchell, the Indiana university sophomore, in the one-mile run.

He turned in an upset over Gilbert Dodds, former Ashland college student now running for the Boston Athletic club, at the Knights of Columbus track meet here last night and did it in four minutes, 10.7 seconds.

It was Mitchell's fastest mile and sports fans today tagged him a new threat to New York university's great miler, Leslie MacMitchell, who didn't make the trip here.

Both Mitchell and Dodds are converted two-milers, but it was the Indiana star's extra ounce of energy that pushed him a foot ahead at the finish. Mitchell recently won the Big Ten two-mile run, and his victory gave him a trophy as the outstanding man in the K. of C. meet.

And like the storied river, Greg Rice rolls on and on. The former Notre Dame distance star toed the Cleveland Arena mark to turn in his 48th straight victory, doing two miles in eight minutes, 55.1 seconds. His world mark is four seconds better. Rice finished more than three quarters of a lap in front of Fred Wilt and ancient Joe McCluskey.

Although the Seton Hall college team captured the two mile collegiate relay, the time of seven minutes, 47.1 seconds was more than 13 seconds above its own world mark. Indiana took second and Fordham third.

Ohio State university's mile relay team won a close from Notre Dame and Villa in three minutes, 22 seconds, runners who turned in that less than five seconds off world mark, are Ed Porter, roy Collins, Russell Owen Ralph Hammond.

Doing the 600-yard distan 1:11.3, only 1.1 seconds over Borican's world mark, Ch Beetham finished ten yard front of Roy Cochran, who peted for the Great Lakes T ing Station. Borican ha trouble in defeating Cam Kane, Indiana's Big Ten mile champion, in the 1,000 run. The decathlon titleh finished in two minutes, 11.2 onds.

STOCK BIDDERS REMAIN TIMID

Little Activity on Market, Even as Selling Shows Signs of Subsiding.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 28—Selling subsided in the stock market's blue chips today but bidding still was too timid to make much of an impression on recovery. Numerous leaders never opened or held at Friday's final levels.

Transfers for the two hours approximated 125,000 shares.

Those who appeared to watch the moping ticker discovered nothing much of an inspirational nature in the war bulletins. The desire to await more light on the forthcoming tax program was an argument for conservatism.

Wall Street has for some time been discounting the likelihood that, despite soaring armament industries, net income for many corporations this year may make a poor showing with that of 1941.

Stocks up a trifle at one time or another included U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Westinghouse, General Electric, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Woolworth, United Aircraft and Texas Co.

Zenith Radio went into new high ground for the year.

Intermittent stumblers were Great Northern, Standard Oil (NJ), Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, J. I. Case, Johns-Manville, Kennecott, American Smelting and American Can.

In a slim curb negligible plus marks were attached to Brewster Aero, Fairchild Engine and Humble Oil. Unchanged to off small amounts were Gulf Oil, Glen Alden Coal, American Cyanamid, American Gas and Bell Aircraft.

Wool Market Slow, Boston Bulletin Says

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, March 28—The Commercial Bulletin said today:

"The movement of wool has been slowed up very noticeably this week because the entire trade has been waiting for issuance of revised price ceilings by the OPA, which have been expected momentarily.

"Such sales as have been made here have been at steady rates on the basis of ceilings prevailing a week ago. A moderate business has been done. x x x

"A scarcity of shipping and higher war risk rates have interfered with South American operations.

"Market continues dull and hardly changed."

BUYING SPREE SENDS GRAIN PRICES HIGHER

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 28—A brisk and unexpected buying spree whirled grain prices up more than a cent a bushel and soybeans almost 5 cents today, erasing the week's decline in most pits.

Soybeans and corn showed first signs of strength, deriving support from another advance in cotton, but buying spread later to other pits and all grains benefitted through week-end short covering on the part of previous sellers. Revival of inflation talk was credited by some brokers for the advance. Reports of deterioration of soybeans in county storage also attracted attention.

Wheat and rye were up almost 2 cents at one stage. Wheat closed 1-1¾ higher than yesterday, May $1.28¾-⅝, July $1.28¾-½; corn ⅜-¾ higher, May 88-88⅛; July 90½-⅝; oats ½-⅝ up; soybeans 3⅝-4⅜ higher; rye 1⅛-1¼ higher.

MARION BOY IN CONVOY OF AEF TO IRELAND

Gene Williams Returning To Duty After Visit Here.

Gene Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Williams of 393 Glendale avenue, who returned here Wednesday morning after accompanying the second unit of the current AEF to Ireland and Scotland, will leave for New York early Sunday morning.

Williams, who recently received his second class electrician's rating, was aboard a cargo ship which was in the convoy. The convoy left New York City several weeks ago and at the same time the ill-fated ships Pollux and Truxtun also left New York. Both of these ships were later lost in a storm off the coast of Newfoundland. The Pollux was under the command of Commander Hugh V. Turney, a former Marion man.

A brother to Eugene, Carroll Williams, is stationed at Pearl Harbor and was recently aboard one of the aircraft carriers which sent aircraft through the Marshall and Gilbert islands in one of the most successful attacks of the allies so far in the war.

Another Marion youth, Jack Gamble, son of Mrs. Nellie Gamble of 848 Davids street, is believed to be aboard the same ship.

To Keep Liberty's Torch Aloft And Aflame

The faster ships glide down the ways into the waves, and planes, tanks, trucks, guns, etc., roll off the production lines into the hands of well trained men, the higher Liberty's torch rises, the brighter it burns, and the shorter the Axis' existence.

This grim race of war production, in which America has undertaken to overtake and out-produce the Axis, and is rapidly doing so, is of course directly dependent upon the production of ample electric power. America's electric power facilities have to date kept ahead of war needs, due to the industry's policy of providing 35% greater capacity each year than immediately needed. Without that "extra" capacity, supplied because of full faith in America's future, her war effort would have been impeded.

This company and the electric power industry, which produces 88% of America's electric power, pledge America that they will do everything possible to maintain for the duration, or to surpass, the service so far given to America's war effort.

"Blondie," New Star Comic, Drawn By Artist Who Began on School Annual

Here is a picture of the creator and personality of the [illegible] artist who draws [illegible] popular comic feature which starts in The Star this week as a page addition to the Sunday colored supplement and which will appear in a daily strip starting Monday.

When Chic Young received his diploma at McKinley High school in Chicago it looked for a while like cartooning would have to go by the board. He strove hard for a living on those days, for his work, though already hinting of the fine style that has made him world-famous today as the creator of the "Blondie" comic strip, wasn't sufficiently attractive to gain him a berth on a newspaper art staff.

Patiently confident that the break would come sooner or later, he worked in offices in St. Louis for two or three years, and then went to Chicago in the employ of the Illinois Central railway. During 1920 and 1921 he worked in an office daytimes and attended art school at night.

His cartooning career began to take definite form when he left Chicago for Cleveland and secured a job with the NEA feature service, doing a girl cartoon. From Cleveland he went to New York with King Features Syndicate to do general art assignments.

Editors at the syndicate recognized his unusual style and ability and it wasn't long before he began to do a comic strip called "Beautiful Bab," which was succeeded by "Dumb Dora." Both were successful and the latter, running for several years, quickly made its reputation.

Later he conceived the idea of "Blondie," which has become a national favorite, placing his name among the top ranking cartoonists of the world.

Reason for Popularity

When asked why in his opinion the "Blondie" strip was so popular, Young said, "I try to picture the average girl of this age, the kind who leads in the complete return to femininity, and then team her up with Dagwood Bumpstead and add Baby Dumpling."

Chic, at both elementary and high school was neither a brilliant nor a backward student, for while he was always an alert chap, his keenness was always directed more to observing what things and people looked like—sometimes more for purposes of revealing caricature, it must be admitted, than to study. He studied enough, however, to keep up, and spent his spare time drawing.

At high school the art course was not sufficiently comprehensive for him so he took courses in cartooning by mail and used his fellow students as models. They did not resent it. Chic was a likeable fellow and his sketches—especially privately circulated lampoons of the faculty—lightened the tedium of study. His "chalk talks" were a highlight of the Literary society meetings, even though not exactly literary. The society met once a week and members were called on to perform—read something, recite a poem or orate. Chic drew caricatures on the blackboard and always received an encore.

CHIC YOUNG

Drew for School Annual

He was a member of the staff of the high school annual, "The Carnation." In his later years there and provided both cover designs and comic features. On one occasion he had out a full page of cartoons, but pulled heads from actual photographs of students on his keyboard. There were protests from some of the victims but the majority thought them funny, with no harm intended, so the outcome was not as unpleasant as was threatened.

It was at High school that he was given the nickname of "Chic." Just why is one of those schoolboy enigmas, but it suited him well. "Chic" was a fun-loving, quizzical youth, with a sense of humor sometimes disconcerting to teachers, ready to fight as well as play, but able to make close friends, most of which he has kept.

He is a hard person to interview about himself, for he is and always was, inclined to give facetious answers. His favorite poet, he recently advised is "Mother Goose." He said his first job was when his mother made him sell his own milk bottles, and when asked about his pet superstition he said:

"I won't walk under a ladder when a painter is falling."

Here are a few of his tips to aspiring young cartoonists:

"It is important to sit up straight at a drawing board. Don't slouch over—I know only too many cartoonists who were seriously hurt falling asleep in that position and sliding under the desk.

"The stains of drawing ink can be removed from a rug by first soaking in milk and then cutting around it with scissors.

"A quick way to tell if the ink is dry on a drawing is to rub it with your hand.

"If you can't get an idea in six or seven hours, don't start monkeying around your desk snapping pencil shavings, sticking your finger in the ink bottle and chewing the eraser off your pencil. Just say 'the heck with it' and throw yourself on the sofa to take a nap.

"Don't be afraid of editors and syndicate managers. If you send your drawings to them and they're interested in your style and future success—kind of."

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, March 29

SUNDAYS horoscope although holding some promise for the clergy and members of philanthropic pursuits as a general way is not a fortunate one. It has auguries of portentous and trying affairs both of an enduring and sudden nature. There may be surprises and unlooked for upheavals, changes and other perturbable events, with disappointments.

Those whose birthday it is may have some success during the year through public, political or organized bodies, through discreet and tactful action. Generally there are portentous affairs concerning writings, travel, strange persons or experiences.

A child born on this day though it may be clever, original and public spirited, may meet with reverses, delays, and disconcerting adventures in life.

For Monday, March 30

Monday's astrological forecast is for a difficult and disturbing day, with much stirring but of an adverse nature. There may be agitation, excitement, quarrels and violence. Rash conduct, with bitter insulting and impulsive words and deeds may provoke reprisals as well as regrets.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of adversity and disturbance mainly brought about by their own rash, irritable, and passionate temper. Words and deeds may stir up reprisals and unhappy encounters. Indulgence, excess and bad judgment in use of funds either in investment, speculation or high living also bring discredit.

A child born on this day may be wayward, indulgent, passionate and impulsive. Its pursuit of pleasure may cause much disturbance and regret. Early training and discipline are recommended.
